

A-1

DO YOU KNOW
WHAT THESE SYMBOLS
STAND FOR?

The symbol "A-1"—denoting excellence—is part of our daily language, but few know its origin. It was—and still is—the character used by Lloyd's "Register of Shipping" to indicate vessels of the highest class. "A" refers to the hull of the ship, "1" to the rigging and equipment.

The familiar Rexall trade-mark is also a symbol of excellence. More than 10,000 selected, independent drug stores from coast to coast display this sign. It indicates pure, fine drug products, manufactured under the rigid Rexall system of laboratory controls—and it assures excellent pharmaceutical skill in compounding them.

N. C. Service Can Advise Veterans About Job Rights

Local offices of the North Carolina State Employment Service are now organized to give information and advice to veterans concerning their re-employment and seniority rights under the Selective Service act, according to a joint announcement by E. C. McCracken, State Employment Service director, and Hugh W. Bradley, field representative, Veterans' Reemployment Rights division, United States Department of Labor.

Under the Selective Service act, veterans are entitled to re-employment rights, including seniority and other benefits which would have accrued to them if they had remained on the job. When the Selective Service act expired last March, responsibility for assistance to veterans in connection with rights was transferred to the United States Department of Labor.
