A Half-Century of Progress

The above rare photograph, taken in 1896, shows a team of two mules and an ox hauling a new loom to a South Carolina mill from the nearest railroad point. Transportation was a big problem faced by southern mills in obtaining new machinery during the 19th Century. On the right, this latest high speed loom on which the shuttle travels across the cloth more than 220 times per minute, emphasizes the high-speed era of today in which streamlined transportation goes hand in hand with top-speed, easily-operated textile production machinery.

Remember it is easier, and less tiring to paint chair legs if the chairs are turned upside-down.

When painting baseboards, hold a cardboard close against the wall above the baseboard. This will prevent the possibility of getting paint on the wall or wallpaper above. Such cardboards are also very useful when washing baseboards, since they prevent the water from marking the wallpaper.

Trellises or window screens can be easily reached on all sides when painting, if hung securely on the clothesline with heavy wire.

Hybrids Simplify Production Of Popcorn

Now that hybrid field corn is being grown on so many farms in North Carolina, production of popcorn has become a much simpler matter, according to Dr. R. P. Moore, head of the North Carolina Crop Investment association.

Heretofore, Dr. Moore explained, farmers have been wary of growing popcorn because the crop would cross-pollinate with field corn and thus ruin field corn seed for the following year. However, hybrid corn, which is now being widely used in North Carolina, is produced from new seed each year, and it is therefore unnecessary to protect either the hybrid field corn or the popcorn from pollen of the other type.

Furthermore, Dr. Moore said, contrary to popular belief, the pollen from field corn does not change the popping characteristic of the popcorn during the year that cross-fertilization occurs.

Popcorn can be produced simply by planting two or three sections of rows in a field of hybrid corn, Dr. Moore said. Farmers who have recognized the superior merits of adapted hybrids of both field corn and sweet corn will want to use a hybrid popcorn. ## SHEEP SEEN AS MONEY MAKERS

N. C. Production Due To Increase, Says Specialist

Sheep production in North Carolina, on the decline in recent years because of shortages of fencing material and labor, should increase in the near future because of the profits which can be obtained, according to L. I. Case, in charge of animal husbandry extension at State college.

There is no question about the profits to be derived from sheep growing, when the animals are given proper attention, Mr. Case said. Last year growers in North Carolina received a gross income of nearly $21 per ewe after spending only one-fourth of that amount to feed each ewe for 12 months.

Good feeding is one of the essentials for economical production of market lambs and wool, the extension worker pointed out. The good sheep man keeps his ewes in thrifty condition, but not too fat. He provides salt and water at all times. He makes use of good grazing, both winter and summer, for he has learned that the longer he can keep sheep gathering their own feed, the larger will be the profits.

When grazing crops are insufficient, a good quality legume hay will go a long way toward keeping the flock in good condition, Mr. Case said. A small amount of silage can be used profitably. It pays to start feeding the pregnant ewes one-half to a pound of grain per head about a month before lambing. After lambing time, the grain should be increased in order to keep the ewes in good condition and milking well. Milk is the most important feed for the young lambs.
