GOOD CHANCE
After exhorting a back-slender among his flock long, earnestly—and vainly—the parson raised his clenched fist and thundered; "You'll go to hell as surely as I'll crush that fly." The fist descended, but the insect avoided fate, and buzzed away unharmed. The chagrined minister silently followed its flight. "Well, well," he said at last, reluctantly, "I'm afraid the Lord is merciful and long suffering. There may be a chance for you yet."

CAME CLOSE
Neighbor: "Did you go to the doctor the other day?"
Man: "Yes, I did."
Neighbor: "And did he find out what you had?"
Man: "Very nearly."
Neighbor: "What do you mean, very nearly?"
Man: "Well, I had $10 and he charged me $8."
