TEA TO HONOR MUSEUM HEAD

Social Event Will Be Held Friday; Emery Outlines Plans

The opening event of the season at the Highlands museum will be a tea and reception for the new director, Lloyd C. Emery, to be held at the museum building tomorrow (Friday) afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock. The public is invited to attend the tea.

Mr. Emery, whose home is Paducah, Ky., was enrolled at Vanderbilt university for a year and a half, when the war interrupted his education. After the V12 program at the University of Louisville, he went to Northwestern university, where he obtained his commission, and then spent three years in the Pacific and in Japan.

Returning to the States, he obtained his B. A. degree from Louisville university, and then went back to Vanderbilt for his M. S. After his summer's work at Highlands, he plans to return to Vanderbilt to seek first a Ph. D., and then the M. D. degree.

Mr. Emery will continue the policy of catering particularly to children, and already has announced classes for Tuesdays and Thursdays. The group will meet at the museum at 10 a. m., be taken on short nature hikes, and then return to the museum for dismissal at noon. These classes proved popular last year, with as many as 40 children attending some of them.

Mr. Emery also hopes to add to the permanent collection of the museum, and, in order to free him for field trips, Mrs. Stella Caziarc has been engaged as museum receptionist.
