VISITOR GIVES IMPRESSIONS OF EXHIBITION PLAY

why there just isn't any holding us!

So, when we heard that the internationally famous Bobby Jones was going to team up with the highly-talented Louise Suggs in an exhibition match last Sunday afternoon against Dick Garlington and Dorothy Kirby, all of Atlanta, at the Highlands course, we hied ourselves thence.

Garlington is the president of the Eastlake Country club and Atlanta Athletic club, and, though an excellent amateur golfer, has never won a title of any consequence. But he showed championship form last Sunday when he and Miss Kirby led Jones and Miss Suggs all the way around.

In golfing parlance, Garlington was "hot". He outdrove, out-chipped, and generally outplayed the illustrious Bobby, who 18 years ago used the same course for practice in preparation for his "grand slam" of 1930, when he cleaned up just about every major championship in golfdom.

But it was Garlington's day! His drives were long and accurate, his chips well placed, his putting deadly. Jones, on the other hand was obviously experiencing one of those days when he "should have stayed in bed".

It must have been on the seventh hole that the following incident occurred. Jones was addressing the ball, the gallery respectfully quiet, when suddenly the penetrating tones of a six-year old girl broke the stillness: "Mummy, is that 'Jobby Bones!'" Of course, Bobby siced that drive.

It was a day for hunting, too. On the very next hole, while Miss Suggs was about to lace into one, a scared jackrabbit bounced across the fairway just 20 yards ahead. Obviously frightened by the gallery of almost 1,000 surrounding him, the little fellow just didn't know which way to turn. Nevertheless, he succeeded in breaking Miss Suggs' swing, causing her to almost duck the next one, and delaying the match until he found refuge behind some nearby rocks.

Two holes in particular were outstanding because of Garlington's stellar play. On the fifth, Dick was on the green about 60 yards from the cup. Lining up his ball, he swung loosely and firmly. The ball appeared to follow a magical line toward the cup. The gallery was breathless. If the ball dropped, it meant Dick had a birdie. Suddenly, the ball slowed down, coming to a halt just a scant half-inch from the rim of the cup. The crowd groaned in exasperation and disappointment, but Garlington just nodded and smiled.

On the long thirteenth, however, he had better luck. This hole, measuring 198 yards from tee to cup, calls for a par 3. On his tee shot, Garlington hit a beauty that rolled to rest on one green just five feet from the cup. He sank the putt for a birdie, two.

It was an enjoyable match. The weather, as usual, was excellent, the gallery courteous, the greens and fairways in perfect condition.

Miss Kirby was steady and dependable, though not spectacular. Miss Suggs was "off", her putts missing sometimes by one

Second Community Theatre Play Set For Next Monday

The "Corn is Green," a play in three acts, with a 17-member cast, under the direction of Fred C. Allen, and a production staff of 23, with Craig Cranston production manager, will be presented by the Highlands Community Theatre next Monday in a matinee and evening performance at Highlands High school auditorium. The performances are set for 3 and 8 p. m.

The setting is the living room of a house in a small village in a remote county-side, and the play promises to be even more entertaining than this season's previous play, which was received by an enthusiastic audience.

TWO BIG FARM EVENTS WILL BE HELD IN AUGUST

Farm, Home Meets Slated At Cullowhee And Raleigh

By S. W. MENDENHALL (County Agent)

There are two important events to take place during the month of August that should be of interest to the farm men and women of Macon County.

The week of August 9 to 13, Western Carolina Teachers College, will cooperate with a North Carolina State college plan to hold Farm and Home Week for Western North Carolina counties. A most interesting program has been arranged, composed of lectures by men and women from the Tennessee Valley authority and N. C. State college, tours of adjoining counties, motion pictures and recreation. The cost for any person desiring to spend the week will be $8. Anyone who is unable to spend the week may go over for a day. Transportation will be furnished by the county and home agents' office. Anyone wishing to spend the week or one or more days should contact the county or home agent's office so that reservations and transportation may be arranged.

The week of August 30 to September 3, the State Farm and Home Week will be held at North Carolina State college, Raleigh.

Lectures by outstanding national speakers will be given on state, national and international affairs. Talks and discussions will feature new and improved methods and procedures for farm and home activities, including crop and livestock production, farm mechanization, rural health, family relationships, and house furnishings. Exhibits and demonstrations on home equipment will emphasize electrical appliances and farm machinery. Tours will be made of historical sites in Raleigh as well as to the college and experiment station farms. Recreation and two feet in direction rather than distance. It was definitely Dick Garlington's day! The young rector from Atlanta did himself proud.

Proceeds of the match were donated to the benefit of the Highlands Community hospital. The exact amount realized from the match had not been announced Monday.

ation will include singing, square dances and other enjoyable features. Contests will be held and valuable prizes awarded to the winners.

If as many as 30 men and women attend this gathering at Raleigh, transportation should not cost more than $6 per person. Room for the week will be $2. Meals may be obtained at the college cafeteria, the cost depending on the appetite.

Any adult man or woman who will go either to Cullowhee or Raleigh should notify the county or home agent's office immediately so that arrangements may be made for rooms and transportation.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown to us during our recent bereavement, and for the beautiful floral offerings.

C. D. NICHOLS AND FAMILY.
