Negroes To Repeat 'Heaven Bound' In Highlands Aug. 22

By special request, the Negroes of Highlands, who are here for the summer as servants of white families, will present "Heaven Bound" in a repeat performance Sunday night at 8:30 in the Highlands school theatre.

... And It Wasn't April Fool's Day, Either

On numerous occasions Col. Ralph M. Mowbray has received letter and post cards that were almost illegible, he says, but not until Saturday afternoon had he ever received a business postal with the correspondence side left entirely blank. Neatly addressed with pen and ink, the card was post-marked "Highlands".

Colonel Mowbray is still wondering what message it was meant to convey.

Highlands fifth annual flower show became history at 9 o'clock last Saturday evening, and will be recorded as equal to or possibly surpassing any of the preceding shows. While there were not quite as many entries as last year, the arrangements were more carefully carried out, and thus was considered on the whole an improvement, officials of the show said.

The attendance was gratifying, the receipts grossing about $380, and the committee, led by Mrs. Green Warren, should feel satisfaction for a good job, done with enthusiasm and without friction, many persons commented.

The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hastings, of Lenoir, Ga., and Mrs. Howell Newton, of Forsyth, Ga.

Prizes were donated by Mrs. O. E. Young of Wits' End Gift shop, Rae's Gift shop, The Jam Pot Gift shop, Potts brothers, Mrs. George W. Woodruff, and Mrs. Green Warren.

The popular vote for the best arrangement went to Mrs. Rutherford, No. 343, with Mrs. Hector a close second.
