

Business jumps may be an early sign of cancer. A doctor should be consulted immediately, the American Cancer society points out.

Persistent hoarseness, an unexplained continued cough or difficulty in swallowing is one of the "danger signs" of cancer. A physician should be consulted.

4-H Week Program Outlined

Governor W. Kerr Scott, Senator Frank P. Graham, and Dr. J. H. Hilton, dean of agriculture at State college, are among speakers slated to address some 1,400 North Carolina boys and girls during State 4-H Club Week, August 1-5, according to L. R. Harrill, state club leader. The event will be held on the State college campus in Raleigh. Representatives from all counties will attend.

As the clubsters arrive on the campus, they will be divided into four large groups known as Head, Heart, Hands and Health. Each group will see one of the following demonstrations each morning: "Boy Dates Girl," sponsored by Wayne county; "My Spokesman! My Records!," led by Miss Emmie Nelson, of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work; song leadership under the direction of Dr. Frederick S. Smith, of Christ Episcopal church, Raleigh; and "Home Is What You Make It," led by teams from Northampton, Nash, and Hyde counties.

For the afternoon demonstrations, the boys and girls will be separated but will still remain with their large groups. Demonstrations for the boys will be dairy production, poultry, soil conservation, and farm management. For the girls there will be demonstrations on dairy foods, wear-care of clothing, newswriting, and floor sanding. A recreation program consisting of sharpshooting, swimming and baseball has been arranged for the late each afternoon, and several special events have been lined up for the evening program. Among these will be a band concert, state 4-H dress revue, the 4-H honor program, a candlelighting ceremony, and a health festival.

Each club in the state has been invited to send one girl and one boy to club week. Delegates will be accompanied by some local club leaders and by county extension workers.

Employers Have Responsibility Under Social Security

BY D. W. LAMBERT
 Manager
 Asheville Social Security Office

When we get a claim for Old-Age and Survivors Insurance benefits, one of the most important factors to be considered is the total wages that have been reported by the worker's employers. Since these employers' reports are so important, I want to review the employer's duties under the Social Security Act.

There are many new businesses being started, so a word to the new employer first. Some go into business without realizing that the Social Security Act provides for two separate insurance systems for their employees — the Federal old-Age and Survivors Insurance program, and the State-Federal unemployment insurance system. Most all business firms are concerned with the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program if they have even one employe, and even if the work is only part-time or temporary. Whether the employe comes under the state employment insurance program depends upon the state law.

The new employer should first apply for an employer's identification number. Blanks for this purpose may be obtained from my office or the internal revenue office. The employer should obtain the social security account number from each employe at the time he goes to work, and the name should appear on his record just as it is shown on the card. He should insist on seeing the employe's card and not rely on the memory of the employe in giving it. When an employer reports all social security numbers and names correctly, he has no difficulty.

The collector of internal revenue mails the necessary blanks to the employer before the quarterly reports are due. When he gets the blanks, the employer lists all of his employes, with their account numbers and the amount of wages paid during the quarter. Then he mails his report with the tax to the collector of internal revenue.

Many employers see that their employes are properly informed about their Old-Age and Survivors Insurance benefits. I hope the employers will notify us when they believe benefits are payable.
