

once in the first quarter, once in the third, and twice in the fourth.

Turning in their usual outstanding performances in the Panther line were Guards Wayne Stewart and George Brown, and Tackle Richard Jones.

Although lightweight Sylva was on the losing end of the tilt, the footballers played an outstanding brand of ball. The big gun behind their attack was a little back named Coggins, who made up in sheer nerve what he lacked in size.

Game's Highlights

Following are the highlights of the game, by quarters:

FIRST: Mashburn took kickoff on the 35; Pattillo plowed to the 43, then to the Sylva 47, on to the 41; Seay skirted left end for two yards; Pattillo carried three times, short of first down, Sylva's ball on downs.

Reid stopped for no gain by Jones; Summer picked up two yards, stopped by Brown and Pattillo; Sylva kicked from their own 32.

Seay intercepted pass on the Sylva 43; Keener pass incomplete; Pattillo drove to the 37, then moved the ball to the 30 for a first down; Keener handed off to Pattillo on end sweep. Pattillo to the 18 for another first down; Keener around right end to the 12; Pattillo drove to the 5, then over for the touchdown, 7 to 0.

SECOND: Mashburn bobbled kick, Sylva recovered on the Franklin 35; Coggins drove for a first down; Franklin held, took over on downs on own 16-yard line.

THIRD: Sylva fumbled kick, Franklin recovered, but lost ball on offside penalty.

Franklin's ball, first and ten on own 5-yard line; Pattillo blasted center of line to the 25; Mashburn tore loose for 60 yards, stopped on the Sylva 15; Pattillo went around right end for the score and made the extra, 14 to 0.

FOURTH: Keener carried to the Sylva 19 for a first down; Pattillo to the 6 for first down; Keener thrown for a loss to the 8, Pattillo blasted the center of the Sylva line for the touchdown, 21 to 0.

The 25 editorials submitted vary in length, and represent 25 different viewpoints.

Of the total number, 17 came from this county, three from other points in North Carolina, two from Georgia, and one each from Florida, New York, and California. All of the out-of-county contestants are former Macon residents.

Ten of the 25 entries came from students—eight from the Highlands school.

A number of the entries were accompanied by letters, voicing thanks for "giving us folks a chance to put in our 'two cents' worth" and expressing the hope that the contest would provoke "some really good editorials". One out-of-county contestant remarked that "being away from Macon County has made me realize what a wonderful place it is".

Shortly after the ceremony, a wedding dinner was set by the bride's aunt, Miss Wynona Hughes.

The couple will make their home for the present at Augusta, Ga., where Cpl. Moore is stationed.

Personal Mention

J. L. Tippett, who had his foot crushed in a bulldozer accident October 2, was released from Angel hospital Monday and his condition has been reported as satisfactory.

Mrs. Potts, Mrs. Jones Speak At P. T. A. Meet

Mrs. F. H. Potts, county superintendent of welfare, and Mrs. Weimar Jones were the speakers at Monday night's meeting of the Franklin Parent-Teacher association.

Mrs. Potts, speaking on child welfare, pointed out that a child's mental development in the first six years is three times as great as in the next 12. That fact, she said, places a great responsibility on the home and the church for development of healthy personalities.

She emphasized the importance of harmony in the home, and suggested that religion is a vital element in the creation of a home that will give the child a healthy mental atmosphere in which to grow. She also stressed the opportunity of pastors in their capacity as family counselors.

Mrs. Potts told of the various types of work done by her department, and declared that today no child in Macon County need start life without a high school education.

Mrs. Jones, the newly elected district P. T. A. director, discussed the purposes and functions of the P. T. A. Although money-raising projects are desirable and often necessary, she suggested that they serve only the physical, and that "we cannot afford to forget that we have equal responsibility for the other, even more important phases of the child's development—the mental, social, and spiritual". The opportunities for service through the P. T. A. "are unlimited", she said, "because the opportunity for development of the individual child has no limit".

As district director, she said that her first goal is an active P. T. A. in every school in this county, and the organization of a county P. T. A. council. Macon now has eight associations, only one less than the county average for the state, she pointed out.

The Rev. Hoyt Evans, Presbyterian pastor, conducting the devotional, stressed the importance of spiritual development, and remarked that "nobody is really educated who lacks a religious education".

The home rooms of Mrs. T. J. O'Neil and Mrs. Margaret Ramsey won the attendance prizes.

Mrs. Allen Siler, president, presided, and Mrs. S.-H. Lyle, Jr., was program chairman.

If the commission grants the increase, it will be the second time since the first of the year that the telephone company has raised rates. In January the commission approved an $8,000 gross increase asked by the concern.

Favors Two Chick Broods Each Season

Starting two or more broods of chicks at different seasons will enable poultrymen to maintain a constant year-round supply of eggs for their customers, says Thomas B. Morris, extension poultry specialist at State college.

Most poultrymen, Mr. Morris explains, can't maintain a good year-round supply of eggs because they start only one brood of chicks, usually in February, March, and April. These pullets come into production about six months later, lay well for about eight to 10 months (or until May of the following year), and then it is difficult to get 50 per cent or higher production without heavy culling.

Under the one-brood system, the volume of eggs is below normal for about two to four months during the year. But poultrymen who start two broods at different times are able to maintain a steady supply of eggs throughout the year.

Research at State college, says Mr. Morris, indicates that the best time to start the second brood for a laying flock is in October. Chicks hatched October 30, 1949, came into production the latter part of March and averaged 73.8 per cent production for each of the five months of April, May, June, July, and August. Production would have been even higher if some of the birds had been culled, but the "loafers" were kept because their livability was being checked.

Besides the high rate of lay, the birds hatched in off-season produced eggs whose shell texture and interior were better than those of old hens that had been laying for eight or 10 months. In addition, the hatchability of their eggs set during June, July, and August was 86.5 per cent.

Public Health Educator Named For This Area

Miss Philippa Kandel, of Savannah, Ga., has accepted the position of public health educator for Macon, Jackson, and Swain counties.

Receipts and disbursements on the construction totalled $16,000, about one-half of that amount raised among the local constituents.
