"THINKING"
We are what we "think". If our thoughts and intentions are nothing but good, things are more "pleasant and profitable" for us. Finding fault, conniving against the other fellow, is bad, waste of time that we can put in on more profitable things, that may make a better life for everyone, as well as ourselves. I do not have time for the "sour" things, unpleasant atmosphere, watch the other fellow, steal his "thunder" or his business; or ride on the "tail end of his train". I like to produce my own business, and be the engineer in handling it. That's why I have been in same business over 25 Years, good times or bad, when many others jumped off the sinking ship.

Have been too busy to advertise in last few days.
This is just to say, we like "pleasant and profitable business" for everyone, and if you wish to "sell or buy" Real Estate any place in "Western North Carolina", contact Early, pastor of the Highlands Methodist church. The high school chorus sang "My Task". Mrs. O. F. Summer was pianist.

Highlands commencement exercises were held yesterday (Wednesday) evening at the school. Graduates were Louis Reese, valedictorian, Haze Edwards, salutatorian, Onville Owens, and Misses Pearl Chastain and Edith Head.

entered, it appears to be a fight between Hubert E. Olive, of Lexington, and William B. Umstead, of Durham. The third candidate is Manley R. Dunaway, of Charlotte.

Mr. Olive is a former superior court judge, and Mr. Umstead a former U. S. senator.

Second in interest to the governor's race here on the state officers and congressman ballot is the three-way fight for Rep. Monroe Redden's seat in congress from the 12th congressional district.

This race, strictly a Buncombe county affair as far as candidates are concerned, has been tabbed by many as a sure run-off. Bucking for nomination are Frank M. Parker and George A. Shuford, both Asheville attorneys, and L. Dale Thrash, who recently resigned as commissioner of the 10th highway division to make the race.

In the four-way race for the lieutenant governorship are Luther H. Hodges, of Leaksville, a well-known industrialist and former Economic Cooperation administration official, Marshall C. Kurfees, mayor of Winston-Salem, Ben J. McDonald, of New Hanover county, and Roy Rowe, of Burgaw, a former state senator.

Seeking the Commissioner of Insurance post are incumbent Waldo C. Cheek and John N. Frederick.

Also predicted as a possible run-off is the race for associate justice of the state supreme court. Incumbent Itimous Valentine, of Nash county, a Governor Scott appointee, is opposed in the short term race by:

Superior Court Judge William H. Bobbitt, of Mecklenburg county.

Oscar Efird, former county judge in Forsyth county

Superior Court Judge R. Hunt Parker, of Halifax county.

In addition to the four above, Superior Court Judge Allen H. Gwyn, of Reidsville, and Superior Court Judge F. Donald Phillips, of Richmond, are in the regular term race for the supreme court associate justice post.

In the primary Republicans will ballot for their lieutenant governor nominee. Warren H. Pritchard and William C. Lelew are after the nomination.
