Agricultural workers are more or less prone to write about the accomplishments of their farmers in their particular areas. I think this is to be expected and should be done on every occasion possible, because we depend on our livelihood, more or less, on the success of our rural people. We are indeed proud and happy for the progress they have made over the past several years, and our farm people deserve much praise and congratulations for the way in which they have worked and cooperated with each other to make this progress possible.

I wonder, however, if we, as farm people, ever stop to fully realize the part our business men have played in making our agricultural programs a success in Macon County. Particularly the work with our rural youth.

It would be hard to mention in a news article each individual business man and how much he has contributed to our agricultural programs in Macon County over a period of the last 10 years. The total figure, however, would run into several thousand dollars. I would like to mention a few of these things to bring to your attention how fortunate we are to live in Macon County. We, as farm people, I am afraid, do not realize to the fullest extent just how much this means to us.

In 1946 the businessmen of Franklin bought 18 purebred Guernsey heifers and placed them with 4-H and F. F. A. members. The only cost to these youngsters was that they pass on the first heifer calf to some other club boy or girl or F. F. A. member. This dairy chain is still very active. To date, more than 80 purebred females have been placed in the hands of these young people. Not only has this been a great help to these boys and girls but it has been largely instrumental in the success we have enjoyed in our junior dairy shows in Asheville over the last few years. These calves alone cost well over $2,000.

Our success in 4-H and F. F. A. baby beef work has more or less become a legend throughout the state. The theme song at these shows and sales has become "you can't beat Macon County". Do we as farm people realize that this success could not have been if we had not had Macon County business men backing our boys both financially and morally? I have never been to one of these shows or sales that I didn't see numbers of Franklin businessmen in the stands and among the boys and calves, talking to them, encouraging them and bidding on their calves. Very few other counties can say this about their businessmen. Other counties wonder at this spirit of cooperation, because they cannot seem to get it. I imagine that each year our Franklin businessmen spend well over one thousand dollars in this project alone, counting their donations and the extra money they spent for calves they bought at support price for their own use.

Another way in which our business men have helped our agricultural work in the county is in our annual home demonstration and 4-H Achievement Day programs. They have furnished the cash awards each year for this program which amounted to more than $200 each year. In connection with this same program, for the last two years we have had a 4-H poultry show and sale. This show and sale is sponsored by Sears, Roebuck and Company and is operated on much the same principal as our calf chain. Sears furnishes the original chicks and the prize money each year. However, our local business men have been very loyal in attending the show and sale and seeing that these birds bring an excellent price. A number of these men have bought pens of chickens and then given them back to the boy or girl who owned them. These birds have sold for approximately $2.50 each for the past two years.

Our artificial breeding program has been materially aided in the past year by business men who have been kind enough to put their shoulder to the wheel and support this program through advertisements in the local paper. This is one reason why we will breed about 1,000 cows this year instead of the 500 we bred last year. Not only this, but our farmers are receiving premium prices for these artificially bred heifers, and also have much superior heifers to use as replacements in their own herds.

One business firm in Franklin has for years sponsored a public speaking contest in this county. They have furnished our local county awards in addition to contributing to district and state awards.

Another firm has sponsored a county Farm and Home Electric Contest for the past five years as well as in five other counties. They give two county winners free trips to a Farm and Home Electric Congress, usually held in Raleigh. At this congress they furnish $100 first prizes and gold watches as second prizes. Macon county youngsters were able to bring three of these $100 awards, one gold watch, and a state award which consisted of a free trip to Chicago to National 4-H Congress, back to Macon County.

These are just a few of the things our business men have done for us. Let us be thankful that we live in Macon County, and that we have men of this calibre to call our friends and neighbors.

U. S. farmers are now tilling about the same number of acres as in 1932. They are doing it with 1,233,000 fewer workers, and they are producing far larger crops than was the case 20 years ago. Much of the credit for this increased production goes to agricultural research which has made new information available.
