Milk Production At Record Level

Milk cows on North Carolina farms have increased steadily since mid-1949, and now stand at 386,000 head. This approaches closely the state's record-high number recorded in June of 1944 when 389,000 head were stimated on farms.

Improved breeding and husbandry practices have resulted in a greater average flow of milk per cow in recent years and this fact, combined with greater numbers on farms, places current monthly production at record levels.

The preliminary estimate for October 1953 production of 141 million pounds is the highest on record for October, comparing with 136 million pounds for October, 1952, and 131 million pounds for October, 1951.

Condition of pastures improved slightly over October 1 and were reported at 55 per cent of normal on November 1. This is the lowest Nevember 1 pasture condition reported since 1926. Pastures which have been seeded and fertilized in recent years are recovering somewhat with emergence of clovers, blue grass, and other fall grasses. Untreated pastures, however, have lit-tle chance to produce any winter grazing — having suffered heavily from drought and in many cases, over-grazing.
