N. C. Milk Production Reaches All-Time Record Output In 1953

Estimated milk production in North Carolina during 1953 totaled 1.7 billion pounds, the highest annual output of record. Production during the year exceeded the previous high set in 1952 by about 6 per cent or 100 million pounds, and was over 14 per cent greater than the 1942-51 average production. The North Carolina Crop Reporting Service estimates the average production per cow milked during the year at 4,490 pounds which was also the highest of record.

Milk production on United States farms in 1953 totaled 121 billion pounds, exceeding that in any previous year, and 6 billion pounds greater than in 1952, according to estimates just released by the crop reporting board. Output was especially heavy during the early and late months of the year, but was only about average during the summer months. Milk production per cow in 1953 pushed to a new high record of 5,447 pounds, nearly one-fifth higher than a decade earlier.
