by arthritis — worked nimbly as she talked about her life and work.

She says she learned the art of rug making from 82-year-old Mrs. Annie Strain, of Cullasaja. " . . . she came to my house about 30 years ago and said she would help me make a rug if I would gather up my rags," Mrs. Wood recalls, "I'm sure that's when I first learned . . . but later on times were so hard we had to wear the rags and stop making rugs." A slight smile flicked around her mouth as she spoke.

What are the chances of having a rug made now?

"It will take me a year to fill all the orders I have laced out in front of me," she figured, adding with a chuckle:

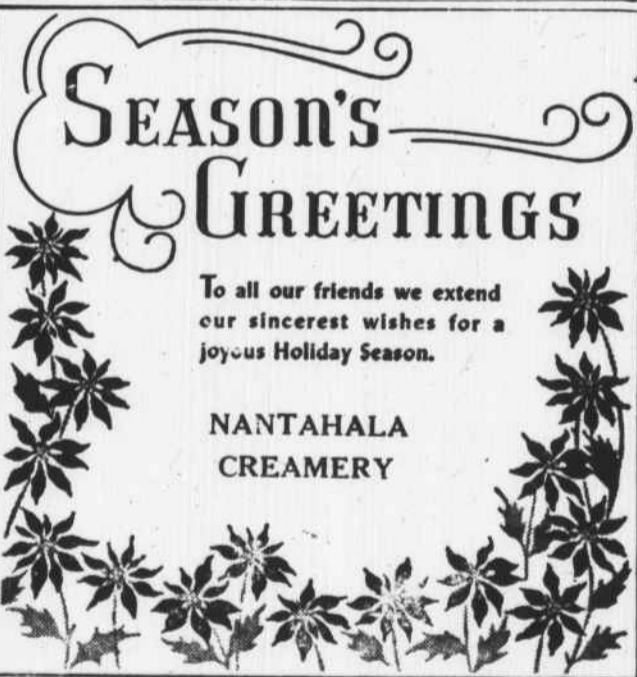

"I think that's what keeps me alive . . . I haven't got all my work done!"
