

What's New At Franklin High

By NORMAN B. SMITH

About $1,300 worth of school pictures have been sold at Franklin High and Franklin Elementary. The pictures, taken in early October, arrived here about two weeks ago.

Strawbridge Studios, of Winston-Salem, receives 60 per cent of the $1,300 and Franklin Schools get 40 per cent. Fourteen gift-size pictures, 8 billfold-size pictures and one studio portrait of each student were offered for $2.50.

Sports and feature pictures for the high school yearbook, the Laurel Leaf, taken by Hunter Publishing Co., of Winston-Salem, were also received here recently. They are being offered for sale to the students.

Thanksgiving holidays will be next Thursday and Friday, November 24 and 25. Christmas holidays, longer than usual this year, will be from December 16 to January 2.

Franklin School bus drivers are taking a series of three four-hour sessions in traffic law and highway safety. A special instructor from the North Carolina Vehicles Bureau is conducting them.

Two more student drivers have been employed to fill vacancies left by adult drivers at Franklin School this year bringing the total of student drivers here to three. There are eight adult drivers at Franklin School now.

Three other Franklin High drivers are employed in driving the three buses at East Franklin School.

A delegation from the Franklin High Library Club attended the Western District North Carolina High School Library Association annual meeting at Lee Edward High School in Asheville last Friday.

Joyce Dietz, president of the Franklin club, gave a demonstration before the group of how F.H.S. library handles the overdue book problem.

In addition to several demonstrations of library activities and practices, officers were elected, the group toured Lee Edwards High and had luncheon in the school cafeteria.

Accompanied by Mrs. Mamie Y. Scroggs, F.H.S. librarian, and Miss Margaret Wilson, the delegates were Joyce Dietz, Judy Bradley, Frances Holland, Jeanette Ammons, Darwin Hussey, John Killian, and Virginia Moore.

The club is recognizing this week "National Book Week", November 13-19.

The Franklin High Wildlife Club has about 70 members this year, the largest membership in its three-year history.

This year the group plans to start a chapter of the National Rifle Association within the club. They also will plant a multiflora rose fence around the vocational agriculture department's pasture here. Next spring the members will assist in stocking the streams and lakes with trout.

"How Our Farm Can Help Win Battles for World Peace" is the topic of the 1956 Farm Essay Program open to rural young people in the Carolinas.

First prize is $350 in cash and a one-year tuition scholarship to any one of several North Carolina and South Carolina Colleges. Second, third, fourth, and fifth prizes are $200, $100, $75, and $75, respectively.

Entries are through the vocational agriculture program here. Another essay contest offered at F.H.S. is the 1956 American Association of Physicians and Surgeons Essay Contest on the topic of "The Advantages of Private Medical Care" and "The Advantages of the American Free Enterprise System."

Deadline for entries is March 1. Prizes for national contest winners are first prize, $1000, second prize, $500, third prize, $100, and fourth, fifth, and sixth prizes, $25 each.

Delegates from the Franklin High Beta Club attended the second annual Western North Carolina District Beta Convention at Mars Hill College November 8.

Jim Tysinger, of Franklin, nominated by the F.H.S. club or vice-president of western district, was an unsuccessful candidate for the office.

Featured on the program were sessions for officers, election of officers for 1956, installation ceremony, a talent show, luncheon at the college cafeteria, and a tea in one of the dormitories.

Accompanied by Beta sponsor, Mrs. B. B. Littleton, the F.H.S. Betas attending were Jerry Norton, Evelyn Holbrooks, Hannah Gillespie, Jim Tysinger, Tommy Gnuse, Frank Smith, Patricia Littleton, Joan Thomas, Edith Christy, Norman Smith, Donald Southard, Mildred Burch, Lewis Cabe, Ruby Fox, Betty Waters, and Doris Teague.

Local Marines In Exercise

Two local Marines participated in a major amphibious exercise early this month on the southeast coast of the U. S., it has been announced.

With the Atlantic Fleet Marine Force, of Camp Lejeune, was Cpl. Robert L. Queen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Queen, of Franklin, Route 1. On the same exercise, with the 2nd Marine Division, also of Camp Lejeune, was Sgt. William H. Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ray, of Franklin, Route 4.

The exercise, which involved 80 ships, 347 aircraft, and 42,000 navy and marine personnel, started October 19 and ended with an amphibious assault on Onslow Beach (N.C.) on November 3.
