SLOW DELIVERIES OF STEEL are responsible for a new type business in Franklin. When builders were unable to obtain steel girders to feed the county's building boom, Lee Tippett stepped into the picture and started making girders for them at his machine shop on Harrison Avenue. On order, he has supplied steel for Glenn Ray's new building, Lee Woods new motor court, Macon County Supply Company, and a new building he is erecting. Workmen are shown above, installing the Tippett girders in the Ray building. Mr. Tippett plans to continue his new manufacturing venture.

sion of the more-jobs-for-men suggestion.

Closing of the highway south, with traffic routed via Highlands, would prove even more damaging to Franklin and this county than was the long period when travel between Franklin and Sylva was halted while that road was being rebuilt, a member commented. He added that Georgia was reported ready to build a temporary hard-surfaced road along the route of the new highway, to accommodate traffic, but had abandoned the plan, since North Carolina would not reciprocate on this end.

No Competition

The rural communities are working together well, under the community development program, and rural Macon and Franklin are cooperating, it was brought out; "but there should be closer cooperation between the two towns. They are so different, there is no real competition; and each needs and supplements the other."

Baseball League

The little baseball league was suggested as a partial solution of the problem of recreation, and as something in which Highlands' participation would be likely.

'Junk Town'

The beautification suggestion came from a relatively new resident, who volunteered it only after being called on. Although he likes Franklin so much, he came here to make it his home, he deplored the fact that it is sometimes referred to, by motorists passing through, as "the junk town", because of the automobile junk yards on its outskirts, "and now we are getting them uptown". Furthermore, "weeds 10 feet high don't give the stranger a good impression". He thought some efforts toward beautifying the town would pay off handsomely.

For Common Good

The idea of a project to bring more people together in working for the common good was developed, in informal conversation after the meeting adjourned, into the specific suggestion that Franklin be divided into "communities", as the rural Macon is now, and have its own "community development" competition.

The club discussed holding a Bingo party as a polo fund benefit. Definite action was deferred until tonight's meeting.

President Erwin Patton presided.

college years in a hotly-contested city hockey league in Newton Mass.

So, with these memories, Jacob Kovner skates hard and fast; fast, because in these parts, frozen lakes are something of a rarity and in his five years here as a research forester at Coweeta Hydrologic Laboratory his trips to Highlands have been far too few; hard, because that's the way all hockey players skate in what is probably the fastest and roughest sport today.

"Once you've played hockey," he explains, "just skating isn't much."

And he quickly adds: "If there was a team there (Highlands), I'd probably be there all the time."

rain that streams and groundwater returned to normal spring levels. By the end of May there was a 9.04-inch surplus over the prior year. Generally, stream flow returns to high levels in December and January.

Ahead For Year

At Coweeta, the 1955 precipitation measured 68.55 inches—and this is as accurate as 17 recording and 93 standard rain-gages at the laboratory can make it.

Statistically, the year ended with a surplus precipitation of 0.16 inch.

July, August, and September were the hot months, with average mean (average between high and low) temperatures of 72, 72.6, and 67.4, respectively.

January, with a 36.8 degree mean temperature, was the coldest month, with December's 37.2 in second place.

May was the wettest month, with 11.01 inches of precipitation. A total of 10.72 inches fell in February.

Mrs. Norton, 80, Retired Teacher, Dies On Monday

A well-known retired Macon school teacher, Mrs. Maude Hudson Norton, died unexpectedly Monday at 6 p. m. at her home in Franklin. Eighty-years-old, she had been in declining health for about two years.

A graduate of McEwen Normal College, McEwen, Tenn., Mrs. Norton came to Franklin in 1910 and taught in the system for 30 years before retiring. Prior to coming here she had taught in Arkansas, Maryland, and Tennessee.

Funeral services for the native of Humphreys County, Tenn., were conducted yesterday (Wednesday) at 11 a. m. in the chapel of Potts Funeral Home by the Rev. M. W. Chapman, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Graveside rites are scheduled for 1 p. m. today in McEwen, Tenn., prior to burial.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. John B. Henry, of Franklin, and several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Norton was married to Zed L. Norton, of this county, who died several years ago. Born May 23, 1876, she was the daughter of William James and Mrs. Martha Josephine Turner Hudson.

Brownie, Troop 5, Elects Officers

Brownie Troop 5 met January 5 at the Franklin Methodist Church and elected new officers for the year.

They are Frances Duncan, president; Jane Cabe, vice-president; Vicky Dean, secretary; and Shirley Sellers, treasurer.

Plans were made for a silver tea and the presentation of pins to new members of the group later this month.

Mrs. Bob Carpenter and Mrs. Ben Sellers are the Brownie leaders.

Legion Plans Speaking Event

Plans for the high school oratorical contest annually sponsored by the American Legion were discussed at last Thursday evening's meeting of the local post.

The post also voted to hold a square dance, for the benefit of the polio fund, Saturday night, January 21, at the Slagle Memorial Building.

The oratorical contest, a nation-wide event, to be held in February, always deals with some phase of the U. S. Constitution. The local post, which each year gives awards to the county winners, decided to give this year's county winner of first place a medal and $5 in cash, while $5 will go to the second place winner.

A committee to conduct the competition locally will be appointed later.

Frank Dean, post commander, appointed Lon Dalton, Frank Shope, Bob Carpenter, and Weimar Jones as a committee to arrange for the benefit square dance next week.

The meeting was held at the Slagle Memorial Building.

Special Education Discussion Slated For Franklin P. T. A.

A discussion of special education will mark the January meeting of the Franklin Parent-Teacher Association, to be held at the high school cafeteria Monday evening at 7:30.

Mrs. Beth Guffey, county supervisor, and Miss Esther Seay, special education teacher in the elementary schools, will lead the discussion.

B. L. McGlamery, the association president, will preside.
