Brady's BLARNEY

By A Brady Called J. F.

I've finally made the grade as a columnist, not that I particularly want to be one.

For years and years I've pounded out thousands of words for a silent audience — one that somehow never found enough meat in my writing to either approve or disapprove of anything I suggested. This is, of course, a rather daring thing for me to bring up because it's highly probable no one has been reading my columns (and I wouldn't blame 'em, either).

Anyhow, the complexion of things changed this week. I got my first "poison pen" letter.

At last, someone has had guts enough to write (but not enough to sign his, her, or its name) and tell me where to get off.

This "poison pen" consisted of some penciled notations on a clipping of my last week column.

"Stupid!" it declared, a large arrow indicating my picture.

An asterisked notation said my initials, J. P., stands for "Jackleg Propaganda."

Asked a final penned phrase: "Who wants to listen to nonsense?"

Dear me, how unpopular I have become!

However, I'm inclined to overlook this thing and even forgive it, for a couple of reasons.

First, because the writer used "listen" in his comment. Guess he's something of an odd-ball who has to have my columns read to him.

Secondly, because he misspelled both nonsense and propaganda.

Who's stupid?

For sheer cleverness, there's a business in Durham (saw its ad-way No. 28, at the Little Tennessee River, more particularly described as follows:

Being the same lands as described in a deed from Hoyt B. Bryson and wife Helen G. Bryson to George R. Shafer and wife Mabel Shafer, said deed being dated April 23, 1951, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Macon County, North Carolina, in Deed Book Z-5, page 358, reference to which is hereby made for a full and complete description by metes and bounds.

I'm a real hoodoo when it comes to picking motels.

On a trip down east this past week with Mr. Jones, I picked out a nice little motel on the outskirts of Raleigh.

We checked in.
Went to bed, dog-tired.
But never to sleep.

We hadn't rumbled the sheets good when the motel started shaking.

It was then we discovered the railroad a scant 10 feet from our back window, and US Highway 1 some 25 paces out front.

With mechanized mayhem as a bedfellow, the boss (somewhat chagrined) and I turned and tossed as streamliners and freights shook us at five-minute intervals and half the trucking fleet of the state double-shifted outside.

At 3:30 a. m., I attempted to add a little joviality to the situation.

"You want to open the door for the next freight?" I asked in the darkness.

He still hasn't answered — or spoken.

Nonetheless, this situation did serve a useful purpose.

It answered an earlier question (when we were on speaking terms): "Wonder why motels collect money in advance?"

jp
"Did you ever win an argument with your wife?"

"Once, but it was years ago."

"What was the argument about?"

"Well, I don't recall offhand, but I do remember very clearly that we were putting down a new rug and her mouth was full of carpet tacks."
