Heard And Seen

ON MACON
BYWAYS

By ROLFE NEILL

Though dogwood is the state flower, it seems to me Macon County, at least, missed a good chance in not adopting the boxwood. Nowhere have I seen them grow as well as here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holland, of Stanfield Branch, in the Culassaja community, have a solid boxwood hedge which runs in front of and beside their home.

An unusual growth is a boxwood tree in the Hollands' front yard. It was a bush and got scuffed up around the bottom so Mr. Holland trimmed away all the lower greenery. Over the years, it has grown into a tree, bare from the ground a foot and a half up the trunk and full and well rounded from there on.

★
THE EASTER cantata presented by Franklin's Baptist Church brought a big crowd and was well received. The choir had worked for many weeks practicing. I wondered if it weren't more than coincidence that the anthem the following Sunday was, "Now the Strife Is Over."

SEEN FROM a pair of waders. Macon County looks one way. From a highway, the view is different. From the mountain tops, or a valley . . . each offers something the other doesn't.

From an airplane, however, there's still another sight. Besides the pretty patterns—such as that of a newly-limed field—the air view gives you the feeling of seeing all of Macon County at one time. The mountain folks who love their land would like it the more if they could look at it from a sky perch.

A GOVERNMENT crop inspector visited the county last year. He was talking crops with a fellow and asked him, "Do you people around here have trouble with insects getting in your corn?"

"Sure do," was the reply, "but we just fishes them out and drinks it anyhow."

★
RESTLESS HEART and restless feet have moved many a youth from out of these mountains and into the cities. Big cities. Up North Out West. Wherever the people thought they could find a foothold. Here's a comment from the letter of a friend, now in one of those cities:

"It is a somewhat depressing sight when you think of the army of butchers, bakers, and candlestick makers that live piled up on top of one another, each one living out his days feeding, clothing, and removing the garbage of the other seven million 999.

"There is nothing like living in New York for impressing you with the insignificance of individual life.

"THE LONELINESS of city life is a cliché, but it is inevitable when you are surrounded by so many people — because to preserve sanity it is necessary to avoid looking into the eyes of the vast swarm of people you pass on the street every day.

"The other day I was out walking with Adam and passed a man lying in the middle of the sidewalk, gasping and coughing. He lay like an island in the crowd which walked unseeing by him.

"And I, like all the others, looked the other way . . . unwilling to be involved in the unpleasantness of another's life. I sometimes wonder if I hadn't had Adam with me, would I have stopped? And deep down, I know that I wouldn't have."

CARL SANDBURG tells it: When an old Springfield friend asked Abe Lincoln, "How does it feel to be president of the United States?"—Lincoln told him, "You have heard about the man tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail? A man in the crowd asked him how he liked it, and his reply was that if it weren't for the honor of the thing, he would much rather walk."

Ways With Cheese — Cheese is a boon to casseroles. Calorie-watchers find that a small serving of cheese has a lot of staying power, and that low-calorie cottage cheese, creamed or uncreamed, is one of their chief blessings! Cheese can be used in a wide variety of ways.

Storing Cheese — Store perishable soft cheese as carefully as you do milk—in the refrigerator in a tightly covered container.

Soft cheese should be bought in the amounts to be used in a short time. Other cheeses keep well in a cold place tightly wrapped so that air is kept from it. Wrap unpackaged cheese tightly in waxed paper, laminated foil, or similar wrappings. If mold forms, scrape off—it does not hurt the cheese. Should cheese dry and become hard, grate it and keep in covered container. It can be used in casserole dishes and sauces. One-half to three-fourths cup grated cheese to one cup of medium cream sauce makes a good cheese sauce. This sauce is tasty poured over sliced hard cooked eggs and served on toast garnished with chopped parsley. This is a good luncheon dish.

OF MACON WOMEN

PECAN PIE

1/2 recipe pastry
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 cup pecans

Roll pastry 1/4 inch thick. Line a 9-inch pie pan. Mix remaining ingredients together, adding pecans last. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 15 minutes; reduce heat to moderate (350 degree F.) and bake for 30 to 35 minutes longer, or until a knife inserted in center of filling comes out clean. If salted nuts are used, omit salt.
