

It's Good Ewes Again

Planning to increase the size of your sheep operation this year? If so, you should give careful consideration to the source of ewes you will purchase, according to the county agricultural agent, T. H. Fagg. His office will again be able to secure good western ewes, as in past years, for approximately $26 to $28 each. Farmers wanting to purchase ewes should place orders with the agent not later than March 5, 1959. A $5 deposit will be necessary on each lamb when ordered. A green light never gives the right to run down a pedestrian says the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles.

ONE OF 100 —
Local 4-H Girls
Named To Board

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Miss Brenda Cunningham has been chosen as a member of the Teen Board of FARM JOURNAL magazine, according to Miss Gertrude Dieken, editor of the Farmer's Wife section of the publication. Miss Cunningham, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cunningham, of Franklin, Route 1. She is one of 100 outstanding teen-agers from throughout the country who comprise the group. The 100 girls selected each year serve as a sounding board for the teen department known as "Up in Polly's Room." The board helps provide story ideas and reports on what's new in members' schools and communities. Several 1958 Teen Board members have been featured in the magazine. Teen Board members are selected by FARM JOURNAL, which has a national readership of more than 3,100,000 subscribing families. The girls are chosen on the basis of leadership in 4-H club and Future Homemakers work, and other rural community programs. Among Miss Cunningham's activities at Franklin High School are captain of the "B" squad cheerleaders, song leader of 4-H, sophomore honor student, member of the homecoming court, and participant in the United Nations Study and Speaking Contest. Miss Cunningham was selected as the outstanding 4-H Club girl in Macon County (1956-57), and she was the district winner in recreation and rural arts for 4-H for two consecutive years.

AT COUNCIL MEET —
4-H Clubbers
Plan For Week

By PATSY CORBIN
Council Reporter

Planning the local celebration of "National 4-H Club Week" in March featured the February 7 meeting of the Macon County 4-H Council at the Agricultural Building. Also, a skit entitled, "Wishes Do Come True", was given by the Union Senior 4-H Club. A short devotional was presented by Jean Dills. Perry Dills, president, presided. During the "National 4-H Club Week" discussion the group planned to begin working on the following projects concerning the observance:

1. Newspaper articles.
2. Radio programs.
3. A window display in a store window in town (county council is in charge).

4. Talent show, March 6, at East Franklin School. The blue ribbon talent will be selected at each club this month and will enter the county show. Recreation will follow the planned program. Admission will be for adults, 35c; children, 25c.
5. Place cards in restaurants during week. The Highlands and Union Senior Clubs will distribute these cards.
6. The group decided to use the following theme during week: "4-H Members Pledge to Help Keep Macon County Clean". Posters will be distributed in Franklin and Highlands February 28 and March 6. Brenda Cunningham, Carson 4-H Club, was nominated to run for district historian in March.
