woolen fabrics, jeweled watches, hardwood plywood, and cotton cloth. We do not say that the products abroad are as good as our own, nor that the American labor can work for the same price as foreign labor. But, we feel that before anyone joins a union with the idea that the union may help them to get a higher wage, they had better stop and figure out if that higher wage may price their product out of the market and eliminate their job entirely. It's happening other places.

men were connected with the union until after they were fired. After being fired, Mr. Poole testified that Mr. Fouts returned to the plant and came into the working area to talk with some of the men. When he asked him to leave, he quoted Mr. Fouts as saying, "I'll see you in town at 11:15 p. m." Mr. Poole said he later took out a peace warrant for Mr. Fouts. The supervisor testified that Mr. Holland was discharged because he threatened one of the workers and "we were afraid there would be violence." A
