FRANKLIN MAN CHAIRMAN —
Plans Made For Cherokee
Easter Sunrise Service

Cherokee — The Easter sunrise service planning committee met recently at Boundary Tree Restaurant here to outline the ninth annual service at Mountinside Theatre Carol White, general manager, Cherokee Historical Association, Inc. announced this week.

The Rev. A. Rufus Morgan, of Franklin, chairman of the committee, presided. Others included the Revs. Joseph Johnson, Methodist Church, Bryson City; Robert E. Johnson, Episcopal Church, Sylva, Cherokee; T. G. Highfill, Cherokee Methodist Church; Arsene Thompson, Whittier Church of God; J. D. Griffin, Cherokee Baptist Mission; Elders Norman Norton and Rind Bach, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Carl Buchanan and Mrs. Margie Douthit, of the Cherokee Historical Association, Inc.

The committee decided upon the following service: call to worship, the Rev. Arsene Thompson; invocation, the Rev. A. Rufus Morgan; responsive reading, the Rev. Samuel Rochester; the Resurrection Story, Elder Norman Norton; Easter prayer, the Rev. Sherman Beird; introduction of speaker, the Rev. J. D. Griffin; benediction will be by the guest speaker, who will be announced later.

The Cherokee Indian Agency will be requested to give permission to hold services inside the new gymnasium in the event the weather indicates indoor services.

The Indian choir will sing two songs at the Easter service. Waynesville High School Band will be invited to participate in the program again this year. Members of the Cherokee Kiwanis Club will be invited to serve as ushers.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served the congregation again this year, it was announced.

The Easter service at Cherokee is sponsored by the ministers of Western North Carolina. Mountinside Theatre is provided by the Cherokee Historical Association, Inc., a non-profit organization.
