

Brady's BLARNEY

By A Brady Called J. F.

Man alive! In all of this scramble for better educational facilities and the like they've overlooked a most important point. And that is, what in the name of Governor Aycock do working parents of school children do with the little monsters when the schools close?

Last week, because of the weather (I'm telling all of you this!), schools closed four days. This week started off with little prospect of improvement because Monday found schools closed again.

So, I'm right back to the same question, "What do you do with 'em?"

Since my wife and I both work, we faced this dilemma in a stage of near panic.

The first day she stayed home from work with our seven-year-old. By noon she wished she had gone to work anyway.

"I'd forgotten what it was like to ride herd on one," she told me at lunch, peering at a new crop of not being able to answer a few of them! How do the kids think up some of the things they ask? Also, my coat sleeve on the left side was pulled three inches longer than the other. Ever had a seven-year-old tugging at your sleeve for any length of time?

I gave him up at lunch and turned him back over to his mother.

The third day of no school we farmed him out with friends. They are no longer friends. Friends, especially those with three children already, can just take so much. I understand perfectly.

I know I'm not by myself in this dilemma. There are thousands of children in this county who didn't get to school like mine.

What I would like to propose are some completely new adult education courses for just such emergencies as these.

The first course should be, "500 Dandy and Sure-Fire Ways to Cope With School Children Who Have to Stay Home Because of Bad Weather." And it follows that the second course should be, "A Short Course in Returning a Home and Its Occupants to Sanity."

"CORVAIR HANDLES BETTER, STEERS MORE EASILY, RESPONDS MUCH MORE QUICKLY AND HOLDS THE ROAD MORE SECURELY THAN ANY STOCK FOUR-DOOR SEDAN EVER MADE IN THE U.S."

—Jim Whipple, Car Life

If you think we're enthusiastic about Corvair, leaf through the leading automotive, sports and science magazines and see what the experts are saying. Then, by all means, drive one yourself.

"Corvair's steering is so light that at parking speeds it feels power assisted; it is so precise as to be absolutely without play, and it is fast enough to allow complete control over every situation."

—L. H. Houck, Automotive News

"So far as shopping goes, the Corvair is a housewife's dream. It's small and easily maneuvered without any power steering, and so easily parked . . . it's a lot easier to unload a cart full of groceries into a front trunk at the supermarket than it is into a rear one."

—Rosemary Francis, Popular Science

"Most surprising thing to me outside of the excellent handling characteristics was the feeling of roominess inside. . . . I didn't have the sensation of driving a small car and the headroom was greater in the Corvair than in some standard size cars."

—John R. Bond, Road & Track

"There is none of the typical whine normally associated with rear-engined vehicles. Inside the car, the effect is quite unlike anything we have ever experienced. It almost seems that there is no engine, and the general effect is so quiet as to be almost uncanny."

—Don Stewart, Motor Life

"I want to state as firmly as I can that the Corvair handles as beautifully and is as safe as—if not safer than—any family car on the road today."

—Jim Whipple, Car Life
