

J. C. Cowan, Jr.

J. C. Cowan, Jr., vice-chairman of the board of Burlington Industries, joined Burlington in 1931, eight years after the company's beginning in Burlington. From superintendent of the Ossipee plant, near Burlington, he moved to the executive offices in Greensboro to subsequently become general manager, president, and in 1954, vice-chairman of the board. Mr. Cowan is a native of Rutherfordton and a graduate of the University of North Carolina.

Herbert M. Kaiser

Herbert M. Kaiser, chairman of the board of Burlington Hosiery Company, has spent virtually all of his business career in the hosiery field and is widely-known throughout the industry as the outstanding hosiery man in the business. He was one of the initial founders and subsequently head of the well-known May-McEwen-Kaiser Company, which Burlington acquired in 1948. He continued as head of Burlington's hosiery operations and he is also a senior vice-president and director of Burlington Industries. Under his leadership the hosiery operations have played an increasingly important part in the development and growth of Burlington Industries. In addition, his knowledge, advice, and counsel have benefited many other segments of the company. Mr. Kaiser, a native and resident of New York City, was graduated from City College in New York.

Howard A. Kaiser

Howard A. Kaiser, president of Burlington Hosiery Company, began his career in hosiery manufacturing with May-McEwen Kaiser company. In 1948, at the time the company was acquired by Burlington, he was sales manager and vice-president. He became Cameo Sales manager of the May-McEwen-Kaiser division of the company in 1949 and in 1955 was made a vice-president and director of sales for Burlington Hosiery Co. He became president in October of 1958. Mr. Kaiser is a native of New York City, a graduate of Dartmouth, and a resident of Stamford, Conn. His offices are in the New York sales headquarters of the company.

Thomas B. Sain

Thomas B. Sain, executive vice-president of Burlington Hosiery Company, is in charge of all hosiery manufacturing operations. He began his association with Burlington Industries in 1941. After serving as superintendent of various Burlington hosiery plants, he became a group manager. In 1954 he was named division manager of the No Seam Division of Burlington Hosiery Company, with headquarters at Harriman, Tenn. The following year he was named a vice-president of Burlington Hosiery Company, and moved his offices to the hosiery division headquarters in Greensboro. In October, 1958, he assumed responsibilities as executive vice-president. Mr. Sain is a native of High Point.

Norman J. Campbell

Norman J. Campbell succeeded Mr. Sain as division manager of the No Seam Division of Burlington Hosiery Company at Harriman, Tenn. in 1955, when Mr. Sain moved to Greensboro. Prior to that time, Mr. Campbell had been on the personnel staff of the hosiery division and group manager of the No Seam Division. He joined the company in 1946 and was named vice-president in charge of seamless operations in 1958. He is a mechanical engineer graduate of the University of Alabama and has taken special courses at Purdue University and the University of North Carolina. He was born in New York City. His residence and headquarters are in Greensboro, N. C.

Ira Drake

Ira W. Drake, personnel director of Burlington Hosiery Company since 1953, joined the company in 1946 in personnel and industrial relations work at the Greensboro executive offices. He is a native of Georgia and a graduate of the University of Georgia, where he has taken graduate courses. He lives in Greensboro. Prior to joining Burlington, he was a personnel director for U.S. Rubber Company for several years and for three years prior to this was a high school football coach.

J. Hinton Rountree

J. Hinton Rountree, Burlington Hosiery Company controller since early 1957, joined Burlington Industries in 1936 as a cost clerk, quickly moving into office administration at various company plants. Before assuming controller responsibilities at hosiery division offices in Greensboro, he was head of office administration at the Burlington Industries main office in Greensboro. Mr. Rountree is a native of Sunbury and a graduate of Elon College.

Joseph L. Perkins, Jr.

Joseph L. Perkins, Jr., group manager of the Dothan, Ala., and Franklin plants of Burlington Hosiery Company, has his headquarters in Harriman, Tenn. He was educated at High Point High School and Guilford Business College in High Point. Mr. Perkins joined Burlington Industries in July 1938, and has held varied manufacturing and administrative positions in Burlington operations.

THE BIG PICTURE

Franklin Hosiery Company has really contributed a tremendous part to the big picture of the growth and development of Macon County during the past five years.

May your picture continue to develop as well in the future as it has in the past and may we take this opportunity to wish you

HAPPY FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Gene's Studio

CONGRATULATIONS AND BEST WISHES

to

FRANKLIN HOSIERY COMPANY

from

Frank B. Duncan