Than we are when you leave our store satisfied with price and quality of our

GROCERIES

They are always FRESH, and that is what every housewife wants, and our prices are in keeping with the high grade goods. Come and see our new styles of shoes, hats, caps and furnishings. They will astonish you and the prices are to your liking. A trial order will convince you that our goods and prices are right.

BRIEFS

The people of the county will not likely drive over concrete brides often before 1922.—Hoke County Journal.

The Pilot man hopes not, because it is a serious offense to drive over a concrete bride. Have they too been wearing short dresses that you have to drive over them so you can't see 'em?

There is yet hope for the residents of our insane asylums. They may be able to get jobs writing moving picture plays.

A Cassopolis man of 66 wants a divorce from his wife of 80 on the ground that she went to ride with the chauffeur, and behaved indiscreetly with other men, the wild young thing.

An advertisement says that commencement gowns for college graduates are to be higher this year. Are they never to be lowered, and always remain high.

A jurist contends that a sheriff can't go aboard a foreign vessel in order to search for liquor. Perhaps he can't, but that doesn't alter the fact that he does.

Now that the season for beating a train across the track is here, the Fool Killer is in the height of his glory.

Why is it the big city papers rant about a "society beauty," and then spoil it all by printing her picture.

The Vass boy who fought in the world war and is now out of a job can be thankful for one thing—he doesn't have to wear his arm out saluting a lot of fellows who are not as good as he is.

The price of steel billets is coming down. That would be good news if you could pay the rent and grocery bills with them.

Farm life has its disadvantages, but no matter how tight money gets the dinner bell still rings at noon.

These "drives" for one cause or another don't seem to have their old time success since the average man has made up his mind that he will no longer be driven.

Woman says she wears cotton stockings because she considers it her "badge of respectability."

The idea will lose force, however, if she displays too much of her badge.

It is estimated that 28.9 per cent of the world's savings are in this country. This is interesting, and we think we'll have to look into it.

Uncle Sam said he wanted nothing when he entered the war, and it begins to look like that is what he's going to get.

A New York man who helped corner the sugar market last year has committed suicide. Why didn't he think of it sooner.

In the event you haven't studied it out for yourself and don't want to, the chemical formula for near-beer is H<sub>2</sub>O multiplied four times.

If this snooping campaign continues we shall yet have the pleasure of seeing a bunch of sluths doing their best to find out where the moon got full.
