CAROLINA THEATRES TO CLOSE MAY 16

Sequel to "The Riders of the Purple Sage" Will be the Last Show

Friday and Saturday will be the closing night of the Carolina Theatre at Pinehurst and at Southern Pines respectively and the sequel to "The Riders of the Purple Sage" has been selected for the closing show.

The sequel of "The Riders of the Purple Sage" is brought out in "The Rainbow Trail," and with Tom Mix and Tony in there doing their stuff it is easy to see there will be no dispute over the colorful qualities of the picture. In the earlier film the star is imprisoned in a valley which has been hemmed in on all sides by an avalanche.

In the succeeding picture Mix plays the nephew of the imprisoned man—and his task is to reach and rescue him if possible.

Mix doesn't waste any time. Right at the start he gets down to business of exploiting thrills—and by the time the film has run its course a full quota of exciting scenes has been caught by the camera. To give you an idea of how Mix puts it over we will tell you that he is dragged for miles by a wild horse over cactus covered country, plunges through deep snow without the aid of snowshoes, and hauls himself hand-over-hand up a high cliff.

"The Rainbow Trail" is Zane Grey at his best, and for real honest-to-goodness, wild and wooly melo-drama this author scarcely has a peer. With the virile Tom Mix prominently implicated in the action, it seems almost unnecessary to remark that the sequel to "The Riders of the Purple Sage" is melo-drama with a punch, and consequently an excellent vehicle for Mix. It seems also superfluous to call attention to the fact that Tony, the most famed mustang in screenland, is also present in the horse-flesh, so to speak.

In the supporting cast is Anne Cornwell, who will be remembered so favorably in "Introduce Me" with Douglas McLean, and Lucien Littlefield who was responsible for so many laughs in Tom Mix's earlier pictures, "The Deadwood Coach." In "The Rainbow Trail" Mr. Littlefield plays the role of a pack train driver and will hand you a lot of laughs.

Both theatres will probably be full on these closing nights and the early birds get their choice of roosts.

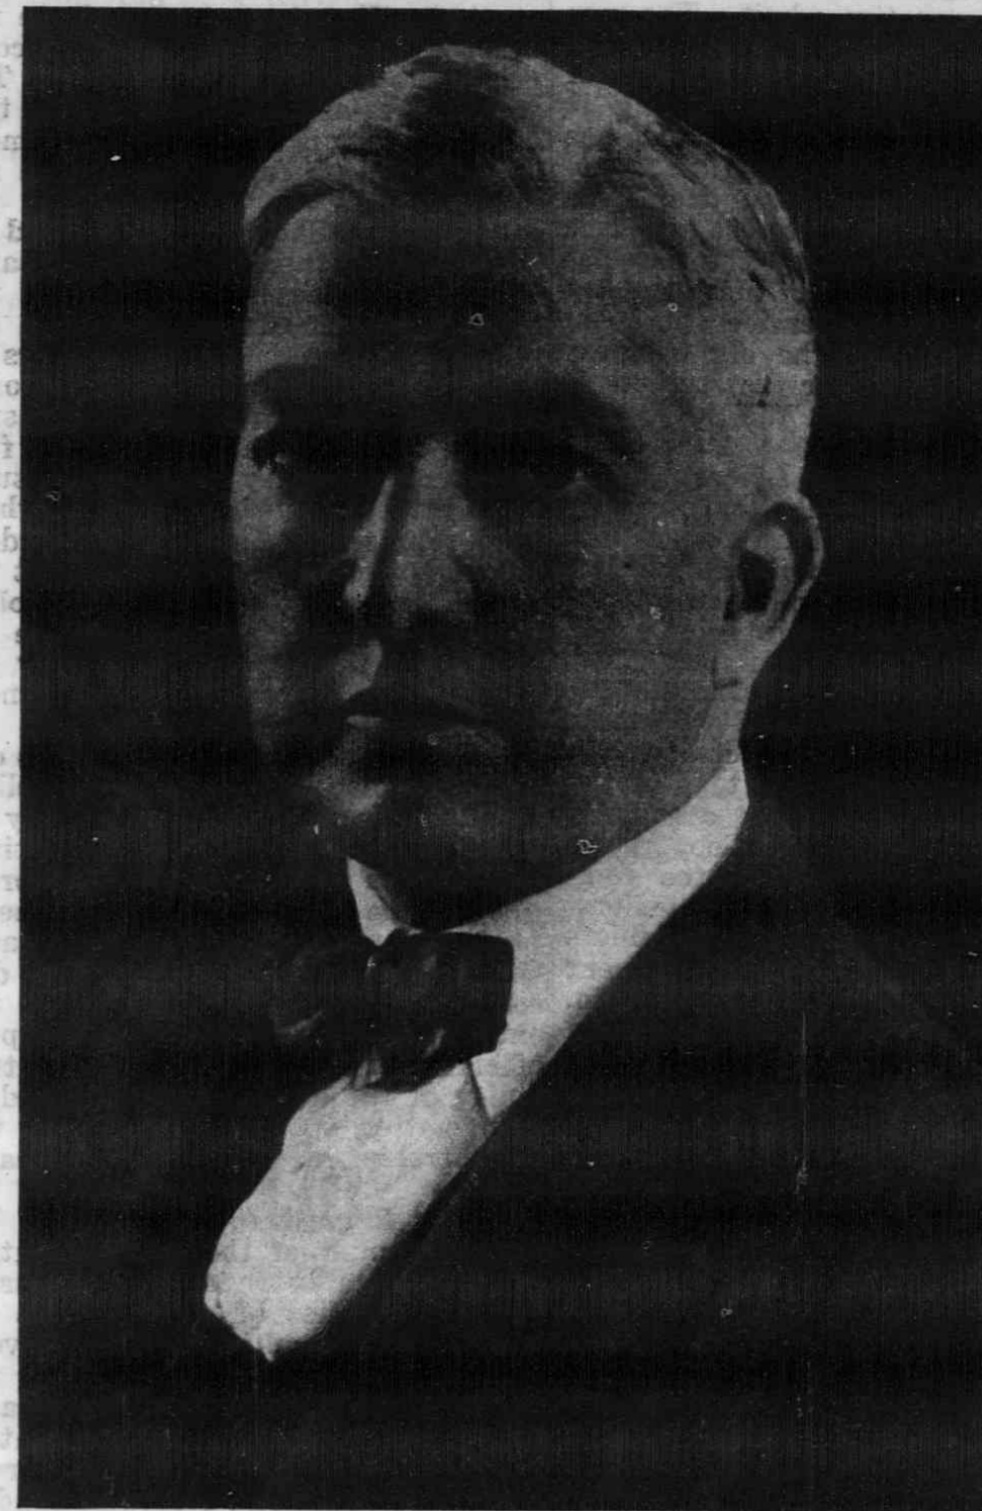

GEORGE W. BAKER DEAD AT CARTHAGE

George W. Baker, one of the best known printers in Central North Carolina died Tuesday morning at the home of Joseph Phillips, near Carthage.

Mr. Baker was 73 years old, being a native of Tilton, New Hampshire. He came to Jonesboro in 1888, where he published the Jonesboro Leader. He worked in Raleigh, Wilmington, Winston-Salem, and other places and

MRS. REBECCA BLUE OF CAMERON DEAD

Was Widow of Lieut. John A. Blue, of the Confederate Army

(J. McK. H.)

Mrs. Rebecca Blue of Cameron, passed away at the C. C. Hospital on Friday, May the 8th, in her seventy-eight year. She was the older daughter of Major Dougald, and Betsy Jean McNeill McDougald, and was born and reared in what is now a part of the town of Cameron. The site of location being the present home of Mr. J. E. Phillips. Her father was a large land holder, and owned many slaves. At that time the town of Cameron—that now is—was under cultivation, and owned by Maj. McDougald.

Mrs. Blue was the widow of Lieutenant John A. Blue, who was killed in the battle of "The Wilderness," in the war between the States. At the age of seventeen, she was left a widow with a baby daughter, and lived for some time with her father-in-law, Archibald Blue, at the place now known as the Blue old homestead near Southern Pines. She was living there at the time Sherman's

SPRAY YOUR DEWBERRIES

Dr. Leiby Says Now is the Time —Bordeaux Mixture is Farmer's Friend

Dewberries that have not been sprayed with the Bordeaux mixture thus far this season should be so treated at once, advises Dr. R. W. Leiby of the Peach Insect Laboratory at Aberdeen. The Bordeaux mixture controls the anthracnose disease of the berry which is responsible for their failure to color uniformly at ripening and causes the berries to rot while in transit. Agricultural authorities have demonstrated that the anthracnose disease is readily controlled by the Bordeaux mixture, the spray preventing the development of the disease rather than curing the leaves and fruit of the disease once they become infected with the organism causing the injuries.

Spraying with Bordeaux mixture has been found profitable by a number of dewberry growers in the past two seasons, and according to Dr. Leiby, it will not be long before all dewberry growers will spray their vines regularly with the Bordeaux mixture just as the peach growers now spray regularly for the curculio and brown rot. In addition to controlling diseases, the Bordeaux mixtures has been found to stimulate the growth of tomatoes, eggplants, and Irish potatoes; and the same will very likely be found true when it is applied to dewberries.

The Bordeaux mixture should be made according to the 3-4-50 formula. Three pounds of bluestone are dissolved in 25 gallons of water by suspending it over night in a sack just under the surface of the water. The 4 pounds of stone lime is slacked separately in a small quantity of water and then strained to remove the coarser particles. Water is then added to the lime water to make 25 gallons. The lime water and bluestone water are then poured together in a third barrel and their combination results

ALFRED MOORE CHAPTER, D.A.R.

Held Its Closing Meeting for the Season—Elects New Officers

The Alfred Moore Chapter, D. A. R., held its closing meeting for the season at the home of Mrs. Tyson, Carthage, N. C., the Regent Mrs. Whitaker presiding. Roll call was responded to with quotations from Patrick Henry and after the usual opening exercises the reports of the various committee were read. Mrs. Whitaker as Regent Delegate to the Continental Congress recently held in Washington, gave a very inspiring report on that meeting followed by the annual election of officers with the following results;

Mrs. Whitaker, Regent; Mrs. Tyson, Vice-regent; Mrs. Johnson, Secretary; Mrs. Hoskins, Treasurer; Mrs. Campbell, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Tyson, Registrar; Mrs. Sweet, Historian; Mrs. Sanborn, Chaplain.

Mrs. Tyson's lovely colonial home, beautifully decorated with spring flowers, was a perfect setting for the closing meeting of the Alfred Moore Chapter. It was a record meeting in attendance and a large number of prospective members present to meet the honor guest Mrs. Mary Martin Sloop of Greenboro, N. C. She held the Chapter enthralled while she told of the wonderful progress of her school and the great work being done at her two stores, one at Crosenore and one at Spruce Pines. After adjournment a delicious salad course was served by the hostess, assisted by her daughters, and several delightful numbers sung by Mrs. Pleasants of Carthage. This meeting closed a full but successful first year for our chapter and we are looking forward to a fuller and more successful new year which will open Tuesday September 1st at the home of the Regent, Mrs. Whitaker and when we hope to have with us as guest Mrs. E. C. Gregory, State Regent from Salisbury.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. C. C. JONES

She Was a Faithful Wife, Mother and Sunday School Worker

(J. McK. H.)

Sorrow and gloom prevailed in our town and community, for the Death Angel has again spread his wings and breathed in our midst. In our town, a small one, all are friends and neighbors; some closely related by ties of blood. Therefore we grieve for our beloved dead, and miss their presence, that is with us no more.

Mrs. Charles C. Jones, one of our greatly beloved and highly esteemed women, one of many christian virtues, passed away at her home, Edgewood, on the morn of May the 8th, in her forty-sixth year. A faithful and devoted wife, a tender, loving mother. We deeply sympathize with the stricken husband, who has lost a world of comfort. "My wife! how strongly shall they memory be, shined within the chamber of my heart, they virtuous worth was only known to me; and I can feel how hard it is to part. Farewell sweet spirit! Thou shalt ever be a star to guide me up to Heaven, and thee."
