THE STORY OF THE KIWANIS MOVEMENT

Kiwanis International is a composite group of business, professional and agricultural men devoted to the rendering of civic and social service to the respective communities in which the many member clubs are located. This International organization at this date is made up of some 1400 clubs in that many cities of the United States and Canada with a membership of 96000. Each of these clubs enjoys autonomy, but at the same time functions in direct connection with district and International administration. Each club is made up of two of the leaders in each business and profession in the city brought together in close association to aid in the solution of national, state and community problems.

The work of aiding and assisting the under-privileged child has been divided into four major groups. The physically, the mentally, the morally, the economically under-privileged. The work covers so large a range that it is almost impossible to describe it without remembering the numerous phases of work connected with the under-privileged child activity. During a recent period of twelve months over 300 clubs administered general welfare work. This service included sponsoring milk and ice funds, financing day nurseries, members adopting fatherless boys and keeping check on their progress, sending under-nourished children to mountain camps, supplying needy school children with clothing, sending girls to summer camps for vacations, giving free memberships in the Y. M. C. A., establishing Kiwanis camps for children, giving 280 orphans birthday presents, sending clothing to suffering German children, aiding immigrant children, pledging thousands of dollars for children's homes, building fresh air camps, and engaging "Kiwanis Happi-

KIWANIS CONVENTION MEETS AT PINEHURST

As The Pilot is on the press the Kiwanis clubs of North and South Carolina are holding their annual convention at Pinehurst. The convention is a little too late to tell much of the proceedings, but it is estimated that around five or six hundred visitors are present or arriving from the various towns and cities of the two states, and the program following is under way or contemplated.

Wednesday evening was the beginning of the meeting, with informal stunts, a dance and the registration and getting acquainted of the arrivals. Thursday morning the formal opening of the convention took place, followed by District Governor E. W. Sikes, presiding, then came the Rev. McLeod, Aberdeen Club, Robert N. Page, Aberdeen Club; Ava M. Lumpkin, Past District Governor, followed by group meetings of Trustees C. R. Brady, Newton, presiding. Presidents, C. R. Pugh, Elizabeth City, presiding. Secretaries, L. L. Powers, Cheraw, presiding. Lunch at 1 o'clock, District Governor E. W. Sikes, presiding. Address, Fred C. W. Parker, International Secretary.

At the afternoon session reports are forthcoming from the officers A. W. Honeycutt, J. W. Fletcher, M. Arnold Briggs, G. Trez Pressley, A. Foster McKissick, and from the various committees.

In the evening a banquet, District Governor Sikes, presiding. Greetings, C. W. Gold, International Secretary. Address, John H. Moss, International President, followed by a Kiwanis ball at the Pinehurst Country Club.

On Friday election of officers is in the schedule, with addresses and the award of the attendance cup. Along with all the rest is to be experienced every form of recreation and pleasure the Sandhills knows how to provide for these visitors, a work in which the local club is taking an active hand.

A WORD ABOUT THE SANDHILLS

Arthur S. Newcomb is one of the most important members of the Aberdeen Kiwanis club for he keeps on tap a line of yarns that he always uncorks when he gets a chance, and most gatherings are ready to listen when he gets up and starts that smile. One is the fairly well-worn story about the stranger from California, who dropped in at a funeral in a town where he was stopping, and when the preacher after a brief sermon asked if any of the friends had a word to say about the deceased and no one responded, he got up and said if no one cared to say anything about the departed brother he might say a word about California.

With the virtues of Kiwanis sung so persistently in the last two or three days a word now about the Sandhill country. Leonard Tufts once years ago located his place by telling that his father had bought it as several thousand acres of the poorest land in North Carolina. It was probably a fact then. But it is now different. Pinehurst is the golf capi-

FAIR ATTRACTS MANY PEOPLE

(Mrs. S. R. Smith)
The Sandhill Fair, which for eleven years has been the means of attracting crowds of people to Pinehurst and which has done more than any other factor to show to the world what the Sandhills are and can do, drew to a close with Annual Harvest Ball at the Pinehurst Country Club on Last Friday night. Each of the four days was a big day, and the management can rest assured that it attained the great object that it had in mind, "to educate, encourage and to entertain."

On Tuesday, two hundred and forty-six students from twenty-five vocational high schools participated in the live stock and crop judging contests. That evening, an elaborate fireworks program was given.

The Wednesday morning feature was an old fashioned Baby Show, where dozens of baby boys and girls up to three years of age competed for the prizes. It was a fine looking and well behaved group of babies, generally speaking. A few of them expressed in unmistakable language their opinions of fairs in general and of baby shows in particular, but these were the exception. On Wednesday afternoon a pageant of great beauty, "Queene Nature's Festival," was presented by school children from various parts of Moore County. A more captivating scene would be hard to imagine than that presented by the hundreds of children elaborately costumed to represent Queen Nature, Fairies, Seasons, Winds, Grasses, Seeds, Raindrops, Sunbeams, Birds, Gnomes, Butterflies and Flowers as they danced upon the grassy carpet of the stage before a background of trees and flowers.

Perhaps the most wonderful part of the Fair, certainly the most wonderful to music lovers
