lected and not accounted for they will be asked for.

Naturally considerable talk has grown out of the situation, and while no specific evidence has been presented on which to make a case the brush has been fired, and the fire according to members of the Kiwanis club, is not to be put out until the matter is cleared up one way or another. The determination to press the affair to a finish was the dominant note of the Wednesday meeting.

But another matter was also discussed with considerable animation. That is the double road between Pinehurst and Southern Pines. The common sentiment was that these two towns are of such vital importance to the Sandhills that the best possible communication must be maintained between them, and a committee of all the club was advised to go before the county commissioners next Monday and talk about the possibilities of financing an oiled road between the two towns, and also to visit the road commissioners and see if the double road cannot be undertaken at an early date. The gathering was equally enthusiastic over the need of improvement of that road, and the imperative need of doing something with it at the first possible minute enlisted a right unanimous promise to be at Carthage to see if a mass invitation for help will bring it. The difficulties in the way of improvement were discussed as well as the needs of it, but the club are pretty emphatically for an oiled road, especially as the lower end of the county pays the big end of the taxes involved in making it, and that part of the county asks for it.

So it seems that Carthage will be an interesting spot next Monday. Incidentally some member of the club suggested that anybody who has any evidence to offer as to road needs or pertaining to the question of fees or other phrases of law enforcement send it to the secretary of Kiwanis club, Richard Tufts, at Pinehurst, or the president, Edwin McKeithen, at Aberdeen.
