Mrs. John Salmon has returned from a few days' visit to Wilson among relatives.

EUROPEAN GRAPES FOR SANDHILLS.

type, which is what California raises are of a superior character, which is the fact. If the North Carolina Sandhills can make the quality of European grapes that California is growing in such tremendous quantities, which seems by demonstration at McBee to be the fact, then a big field seems open for the farmers who raises them—provided they can be kept free from disease and pests.

There seems to me to be the one thing to be determined—the diseases. If grape diseases can be controlled I do not doubt that the same excellent kinds of grapes that California is growing in thousands of car loads can be grown with success in the Carolinas, and I think it is worth while for the various neighborhoods to arrange some scheme whereby the experiments can be tried out locally. Vines can be secured at McBee, from W. L. McCoy, and the Seaboard is eager to give all information possible to the man or the community that will make a try. Whatever is done must be on a scale large enough to spray and care for the vines, for it does not appear likely that vines not sprayed and cared for have a chance to survive.

If the European grapes can be grown and disease kept from the field is so big in this section that grapes look like a highly important crop, for they are the most valuable food crop among the fruits. The grape is so largely sugar that it has a higher nourishing value than most other crops, and while it is not yet shown that raisins can be made in the moist climate of the Atlantic Coast, it is worthy of note that California makes more raisins than any other place in the world. The magnitude of the California grape industry can be understood if California grapes are compared with Sandhill peaches. We think we have done well here if we load 2,000 cars of peaches. But California has loaded 2,000 train loads of grapes—a full train of grapes for every car of peaches we send out. And a big proportion of California grapes come east of the Allegheny mountains, into a market not far from North Carolina.

That is why I think this thing is worth looking into farther, and as the Seaboard is doing most of the experimenting so far there is no reason for not watching the proposition as fully and carefully as possible.

training to produce crops of high quality, and more intelligent marketing, with strict attention to the details of grading, packing and distribution, than is required with general farm crops.

I feel certain that your program for the development of the industry takes into consideration all these points.

Let me assure you that this department stands ready to assist in the sound development of this industry in every way."

road will be one of the main traveled roads of Middle North Carolina for the future. The golf grounds have responded quickly to the care given them, and a casual inspection pronounces them the equal of anything available in this country.

Pine Needles will add emphatically to the reputation of the Sandhills, and the business of the territory for the coming season may be regarded as the best this neighborhood has ever known. The Pine Needles Inn is the most formidable advertisement Moore County has received since the Carolina was built, and because it is an advertisement in a medium that is now better known than the Sandhills country was then it will be proportionately more forceful in its quick results.

Leonard Tufts, and Richard Tufts, likewise, for the young man has been uncommonly active in this new venture, have done a great piece of constructive work in this job at Pine Needles.

Vass and Community

Much interest is being shown in the tent meeting which has been in progress here for more than a week. Two young men of the Holiness church are doing the preaching, and are being heard by crowds of people each evening. They have their pianist along, and the music is a pleasing feature of the services.

Mrs. J. R. Thomas, Miss Mildred Thomas, J. R. Thomas, Jr., and Miss Edna Paterson left Wednesday morning for Winston-Salem where the Thomas family will be guests of the Pattersons for several days. Mr. Ring, who lives at the Boger place on Route 2, had the misfortune of losing his barn and stables by fire early Monday morning. The fire was discovered just in time for Mr. Ring to save his stock, two mules, a horse and a cow, but considerable damage was done to his tobacco in a nearby field.

Mrs. E. Dunkhorst and daughter, Isabel, and Mrs. Webber left last week for Reidsville, where they were to visit relatives before going to New York to make their home. The Dunkhorst and Mrs. Webber have made many friends while here, and we regret that business interests necessitate their leaving Vass.

Miss Minnie Muse and John C. Muse, of Cameron, and their guest, Miss Louise Campbell, of Colorado, visited at the home of W. H. Keith (Please turn to page 7)
