Knollwood Heights The Center of Activity

While the sale of building sites at Knollwood Heights is moving at a gait that is unusual for summer, the main desire with Knollwood is to keep the improvement schedule up with the building activity.

It is no secret that Knollwood did not expect to see things strike such a run-away gait as the ten months of action there has developed. So the original plans did not anticipate the big amount of work that has had to be done. Right now a big crew of hands is busy on improvement, and it is apparent that this must continue indefinitely, for no longer is there any doubt that Knollwood is to forge ahead to bounds that nobody can suspect.

the stakes show that here is to be another castle. The Johnson house, the Ross house, the Vail house, the Pushee house and the Van Keuren house are all far enough along now to show what they represent, and here is another surprise, for no one suspected such expensive and well-designed buildings for the beginning of construction at Knollwood. Every house on the hill has exceeded expectations, and when they are completed they will still further excite surprise, for they are all a little or much more ambitious than was contemplated when the first sketches were made.

The house building is fully as unprecedented as the sale of house sites, and that is another agency for uncommon activity. The Ross house has been staked out, and

The new buildings on Knollwood Heights this summer mean more money than H. A. Page, Jr., paid Dr. Von Herff for the whole Edgemoore property when he bought it.
