Apply Dormant Spray to Fruit Trees Scale insects and plant lice are controlled through the use of the dormant spray to fruit trees This is the first spray of the season and when applied to peach trees must be timed so as to get on before the buds swell so as to control peach leaf curl as well as the scale insects. For apples the application is made most effectively when the leaves have protruded about one-fourth of an inch from the buds.

The dormant spray is primarily a control for scale insects advises C. H. Brannon and G. W. Fant of the State College extension staff. Yet when oil or nicotine sulphate is added to the lime-sulphur at the rate of three-fourths of a pine to 100 gallons, plant lice are also controlled, espec- MARTIN HEWS, by E. for dormant sprays because the oil will control the scale and is more pleasant to apply. Such sprays may he made at home though it is advised that they be purchased unless the grower has a large number of trees to treat. Brannon and Fant say that there are many excellent products on the market and growers should get authoritative information before investing. Do not buy worthless materials, they advise, and do not apply oil sprays when there is danger of freezing weather.

Of this amount 2,500 pounds is grain feed and may be supplied by 23 bushels of corn, 24 bushels of oats and 13 bushels of wheat. To supply the 1,750 pounds of mash feed also in the ration, the grower should raise 10 hushels of corn and 11 hushels of

Some additional feed will also be needed on the poultry farm for young and growing birds, therefore Dr. Kaupp says if the average farm keeping a flock of 50 adult hens will produce for the poultry 25 bushels of corn, 26 bushels of oats and 15 bushels of wheat, the owner will need to buy only about 400 pounds of fish meal or meat meal, 400 pounds of bone meal to have his birds well fed. Dr. Kaupp has worked out a North Carolina laying mash and a North Carolina grain feed which has given excellent results on the experimental poultry farms. The formula for mixing these feeds at home will be supplied to any poultry grower in the State who will write for it. The successful farmer who keeps a flock of pure bred poultry as a side-line should not have to buy his feedstuffs. They can be raised and mixed at home with excellent results, declares Dr Kaupp.
