Hunting Must Stop on Fort Bragg Reservation, Say State and Army

Game Warden Instructed to Assist Military Police in Enforcing Laws

A large number of deer were killed last year within the boundaries of Fort Bragg by persons living outside the reservation, and this fall the practice started again. The extent of the hunting has aroused the military authorities and also the State Game Commission, and a right decisive note of instruction has been received by Alex Fields, the local game warden regarding the situation. To The Pilot Mr. Fields said Monday: "I have been notified by the State Game Warden to aid the military police of Fort Bragg to in any way stop the hunting of deer in the Fort Bragg area. The military authorities are making relentless war on trespassing within the boundaries, and a force of military police including an airplane with field glasses and a sending instrument for dispatching radio information of marauders when any are seen, are patrolling the borders of the fort with the determination to stop hunting. I am commanded to help in every way possible. This notice is sent men from the State headquarters with the expectation that folks may be kept out of the camp, and out of contact with the military police rather than have them violate the laws and suffer the penalty. It is more gratification to me to caution the folks and save them trouble than to have to help arrest them if found violating the Fort Bragg military laws. The authorities at the fort also notify me that they are determined to stop this practice of going on the government ground to shoot."

Mr. Fields says he dislikes to arrest anybody, but that he has no choice in the matter, and that if he should not enforce the law the other State and federal officers will quickly want to know why, and they will take steps that will dispose of the whole situation. Already some arrests have been made by the federal officers and the sentiment coming from that direction is that others will follow as rapidly as violators are discovered. The information sounds as if it is coming from a voice that talks with some teeth in its mouth.

PLANT COVER CROPS EARLY AS POSSIBLE

For best success with winter cover crops for soil improvement, the seed should have been planted by October first, but those planted at once may get established before cold weather.

"In all parts of North Carolina at the present time, the soil is well supplied with moisture and seed should germinate immediately," says Enos C. Blair, agronomy specialist at State College "Immediate planting will permit the plants to make a good growth of both tops and roots before frost. This will not only put the crop in better condition to stand the winter; but, when spring comes, the well-developed roots system will allow the plants to take advantage of the first warm days of spring and to make an early and rapid growth."

Mr. Blair says early planted cover crops will make more growth than late planted ones and will attain this growth earlier. This permits the landowner to turn under his winter grown crops for soil improvement in time to plant the spring cash or food crops.

The proper amount of seed for one acre of fall sown cover crop as given by Mr. Blair is as follows: Crimson clover, 25 pounds; vetch, 25 pounds; Australian winter peas, 30 pounds and Abruzzi rye 1 1-2 bushels.

These crops may be planted after tobacco; after corn that has been cut and shocked; in cotton before picking is completed; in corn before pulling the ears or after soybeans or cowpeas planted and cut for hay. In sowing in a growing crop, the seed may be broadcasted and covered with a cultivator. In other cases, prepare the seed bed with a harrow, sow the seed and then harrow them in. No fertilizer is necessary except on very poor soils, says Mr. Blair.

N. C. LEADS COUNTRY IN ACTIVE COTTON SPINDLES

North Carolina led the United States in total active cotton spindles during August, the Bureau of the Census has announced.

The Tar Heel State had 5,432,414 spindles active at some time during August. South Carolina was second with 5,349,796 and Massachusetts was third with 4,416,026.

Tennessee was far in the lead of all states in average active spinning hours per spindle in place. That State had an average of 286 hours, South Carolina was second with 227, Georgia was third with 193, Alabama fourth with 190 and North Carolina fifth with 187.

South Carolina led the country in total active spindle hours with 1,286,363,161; North Carolina was second with 1,165,925,660, and Massachusetts was third with 658,866,458.

Weymouth Heights SOUTHERN PINES, N. C.

Louis Lachine began in the spring to build another house on Weymouth Heights. He picked a desirable location on Indiana avenue extension and near the Olmstead home.

It is a fine type of Indiana limestone construction, a model and a well-planned structure.

It will be complete in four or five weeks. Last week it was rented. The folks who get it want it at the earliest possible minute, even urging that its completion be hurried.

THE PINEHURST WAREHOUSES

Pinehurst, N. C.

The Home of Dependable Roofing Material

A great many types of roof covering are on the market, but always, as with anything, some are good, some are poor, and among the number is one that is better than any of the rest.

The Pinehurst Warehouses

HAVE SPECIALIZED IN ROOFING FOR MANY YEARS

The underlying principle in this matter is to secure—

The Best Roofing Obtainable.

To carry it always in stock.

To have it in reasonable varieties,

And to have always the kind you have bought previously, so you may make repairs to your roofs if you need to.

SO FAR WE HAVE FOUND NOTHING THAT IS SUPERIOR TO

Johns-Manville Giant Weight Asphalt Roofing

Durable, Good to Look at, Easy to lay, Inexpensive to handle.

We carry it in staple colors, and always have those colors on hand to match.

It is so good it never goes out of fashion.

WE ALSO SELL

Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles

AND

Cop-R-Loy Galvanized Roofing

The Channel Drain, which carries water off in the channel, instead of allowing it to run all over the roof and get through cracks.

If there is anything else in roofing you care to obtain we will secure it if it is worth having, if we do not have it in stock, as we represent manufacturers whose goods we do not carry in large quantities.

But if you have a Johns-Manville roof you have one you can depend on, or if you have a Cop-R-Loy Channel drain iron roof you have the best that can be in galvanized roofing.
