

Addition to Archery Plant May Result From Increased Business

Facilities at Pinehurst Factory Crowded to Limit as Archery Gains in Popularity

The archery plant at Pinehurst is not only one of the picturesque institutions along the Midlands road, but it is also a growing industry. Curiously enough calls come to the factory for other things besides archery goods. B. W. Linderman not long ago as a sort of a side line and partially for amusement built a cedar chest of interesting design and skillful finish. It went to India. Then another one was called for an adult. George Moore of Southern Pines wanted a stock for his gun and of special material. So a stock was carved out of that fine greenheart wood of South America, hard, handsome and refractory to work. It made a great gun stock but Mr. Neidich's view of making greenheart gun stocks is like the Indian's who says it costs more than it comes to. Gun stocks and cedar chests and kindred side lines are not to be featured at the factory. And while it is possible that before long an addition will have to be built to the plant it will be from the need of more room to care for the steadily growing demand for archery goods.

The present facilities of the factory are crowded to the limit. Goods go out to practically every state of the Union. The sport is capturing new territory all the time. An unusual feature about the situation at Pinehurst is that while other places make archery goods to some extent the Pinehurst factory has a reputation for a product of high standard, and is practically without competition. A few other plants operate throughout the country, but the Pinehurst factory started to supply equipment for the more particular field of sports, and its trade is constantly calling for an increased product as more athletic associations and archery to their list of games.

Archery has a place of its own. It is a clean sport which can be taken up with one or two individuals or by a large number. No costly grounds are required. The equipment needed is not very much. A bow, some arrows, a target and a hundred yards of open lawn are the essentials. One archer can carry on the game alone, or any number. It may be as vigorous as desired, or it can shade down to the

Alex Fields Calls Meeting of Sportsmen To Hear Suggestions

At the instigation of J. W. Harrelson, director of the State Department of Conservation and Development, Alex Fields, Moore county Game Warden, has called a meeting of sportsmen of this section at the Court House at Carthage for 2 o'clock tomorrow, Saturday, afternoon for the purpose of discussing the game problems peculiar to this county. The State department has called upon each county group to elect a chairman, secretary and delegates to a meeting to be held at Raleigh Tuesday afternoon, November 18th at 2 o'clock.

The purpose of this Raleigh meeting is to have the sportsmen of the state present their points of view relative to the game laws and the game situations in North Carolina to the Conservation board. Mr. Fields hopes that the Carthage meeting of local sportsmen will be well attended so that a representative delegation may be selected to go to the meeting at Raleigh.

mildest form of exercise by the use of a light bow. The Pinehurst archery factory builds its products from the sportsman's viewpoint. Every bow that goes out is tested to make sure that it is fit for the sportsman's use. The underlying aim is to hold archery to a high plane. To do this requires good weapons. And that is the kind the factory insists on turning out. And that is why business at present time is good and the outlook indicating an addition to the plant some of these days.

The Rev. Mr. Myers of Virginia, who was visiting in the community, made an interesting talk at the Baptist Sunday School at Vass last Sunday morning.

The Woman's Club met Thursday afternoon in the club room with Mrs. Loula Muse, the president, presiding. The club collect was repeated in unison, followed by prayer for the uplift religiously and socially of the community, closing with the Lord's Prayer in concert. Business was discussed and committee appointed to arrange for a musical attraction to be sponsored by the club in the near future. The program was presented by Mrs. J. J. Irvin, chairman of the Art Department. An interesting sketch of the life and work of Clement Strudwick, a young artist of our own state, a native and resident of Hillsboro, who has attained fame as a portrait painter, was given by Mrs. Loula Muse, who also exhibited an admirable charcoal portrait of the artist, drawn by himself—while looking in a mirror. Mrs. Rex Kelly of Sanford was then introduced and she made a worth-while talk on modeling and decorating picture frames, book ends, etc., in clay. She explained the articles in their various stages of formation, with the finished products to delight the eye.

Mrs. H. P. McPherson had charge of the chrysanthemum contest, guessing the number of petals. Mrs. M. McL. McKeithen was the winner and was given a dozen lovely chrysanthemums, which she graciously bestowed upon our guest of honor, Mrs. Kelly of Sanford. Other guests of the club were Mrs. A. J. McRae of Sanford and Mrs. Ed Snow of Advance. Delicious cakes and coffee were served at the close of the meeting.

Last week was "Initiation Week" at N. C. C. W., among other stunts the freshmen were forced to perform was the wearing of huge yellow bows in their hair, and we know our own Jessie McFadyen was a beauty with her red hair and yellow bow. Jessie also made the Fresh-Soccer team, only member of the Commercial team to do so. She plays center half back.

Sam Coma, an industrious farmer who lives near town, lost four bales of cotton Friday, by fire. The cotton was out in the open and supposed to have been ignited by the carelessness of his little boys, who were smoking cigarettes and hiding from their mother behind the bales of cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. V. Hartsell and Miss Valda Hartsell of Morven, spent the week-end with their parents, the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Hartsell.

Ernest Heflin came down from Camp Humphrey, near Washington, D. C., last week, and after a short stay returned, accompanied by Mrs. Heflin and children.

Mrs. W. G. Robinson and Mrs. W. H. Day, mother and sister of Mrs. N. C. McFadyen, left Saturday for Chicago to visit Mrs. Robinson's sister, Mrs. H. B. Dutton.

Miss Mary Emma Thomas, teacher at Greenwood, came home to vote, and Miss Flora Morrison of Cameron school, went to her home at Eagle Springs to cast her vote. All honor to these young women, proving their loyalty to their state by making an effort on such a rainy day to go to the polls.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Loving of Pittsboro spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Loving of Route 1.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cannon of High Point spent the week-end with their father, J. W. Norman.

Rev. J. H. Buffalo preached his last sermon before conference, which convenes in Henderson next week. Of course we feel sure he will be returned as he is greatly beloved by all his churches and by all other denominations.

Misses Amanda and Alice Clark of Clarkton spent Saturday night with Misses Lillian and Thurla Cole.

Mrs. G. M. McDermott spent last Thursday with her mother, Mrs. H. A. McCallum, near Farm Life School.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Williard of High Point were week-end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Boaz.

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Boaz, Misses Loula Gaddy and Eva Hendrix and Ernest Badgett were at the movies in Sanford Friday evening.

Coach Albert Martin's Harmony High team at Elkin on November 1, repulsed a much heavier Boonville team, and licked them 8-7. Prof. J. Clyde Kelly, formerly of the Cameron School, is Superintendent of this school, and Bruce McFadyen, one of our boys, is a member of the Harmony team. From a "write-up" of this game in a Winston-Salem paper we quote: "Bruce McFadyen, speedy half-back, was the whole show of the game. Several times he ripped off gains as much as twenty yards, and once he shot through the line of scrimmage for twenty-three yards and a touch-down." Hurrah for Bruce!

Mrs. Nancy Lewis of Freemont, who has been visiting her son, J. H. Lewis, returned to her home Wednesday.

An interesting and patriotic program, under the supervision of Miss Inez Wannamaker, was held in the school auditorium last Tuesday morning, in honor of Armistice Day.

On Weymouth Heights!

This is the middle of November.

In a few days the hunts will begin on the Weymouth ridges.

The lively red coats, the dogs, the chase, and the interest and excitement will be going on, and folks will be getting better acquainted with the Weymouth territory as a home section.

You know the story. Every year many acres are retired from the market.

Every year more folks pick up Weymouth acreage.

Every added piece lessens the remainder that is left for the late comers.

Every new sale definitely emphasizes the price.
