Pinehurst Census Figures A Surprise

About as Large Now as Were Two Largest Villages of County Ten Years Ago

For some time Pinehurst has had a curiosity as to the number of people the census enumerator found in the count made during the summer. Last week the figures were given out, and the village is walking on its high heels over the satisfying report of 1,705. A curiosity about Pinehurst is that this is the first time it has ever known it had any population to enumerate as a village or community. Pinehurst has never had any municipal organization, being just Pinehurst, a delightful neighborhood in which good people foregathered to enjoy the pleasures of a comfortable climate, with the games and sports and fellowship the place made famous, and it is pretty hard even now to tell where Pinehurst is, or begins or ends. Everybody knows where Pinehurst is a center of all it stands for, but as far as the boundary lines that is another matter. So the enumeration counted the folks in the group clustered around the Carolina, and some of the other prominent buildings, and worked out the country roads as far as the settlement seems continuous.

Ten years ago the census showed Carthage to be the big town of the county with 962 people and Aberdeen second with 858. Now Pinehurst is almost as big as both of them were then, and bigger than any two of the other towns of the county were then. This figure of course is only for the permanent population, for the winter population of all the towns is much bigger than in summer, the main hotels at Pinehurst and Southern Pines alone being able to accommodate probably 3,000 people, to say nothing of the boarding houses and private homes that shelter a large number of visitors and winter residents. At times the accommodations are overtaxed in winter, giving Pinehurst a population temporarily up in several thousand, as is also the case at all the villages.

The census ten years from now will be interesting to figure on.

Editor Saunders Addressed Kiwanis

Advocates Establishment of Bird Sanctuary in Sandhills

This (Thanksgiving) week's meeting of the Kiwanis Club, following the custom inaugurated two years ago, was held in the spacious and hospitable home of Mrs. J. R. Fage, in Aberdeen; the luncheon being furnished by the ladies of the Aberdeen Presbyterian Church and the proceeds going to the Thanksgiving offering for Barium Springs Orphanage.

The club had as its speaker this week, the famous W. O. Saunders of Elizabeth City. Mr. Saunders, a noted nature lover, spoke on birds and game preserves and suggested the establishment of a bird sanctuary in this section. At the conclusion of his speech a movement was set on foot looking to that end, and the matter is in the hands of the Public Affairs Committee of the club.

Frank Buchan, Chairman of the "Christmas Daddy" committee, made another appeal for discarded clothing and toys for the poor children of Moore County. The members of this committee are, in addition to Mr. Buchan of Southern Pines, H. Lee Thomas of Carthage, Bill Dunlop of Pinehurst, and Murdoch Johnson of Aberdeen. Anyone having discarded clothing (especially children's) and broken toys will be doing a service if they will kindly deliver any of such to either of these men. They were appointed from these different communities in order that one of them might be easily accessible to any person in the section desiring to cooperate in this movement.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wetmore and children of Durham, will spend their Thanksgiving in Aberdeen as the guests of Mrs. Wetmore's aunt, Mrs. George G. Martin.

Why Take the Chance?

The numerous accidents involving personal injury that have occurred in the Sandhills, recently prompt us to urge every one to make ample provision for such an emergency.

Many console their conscience by saying "I'm careful," "I watch where I step," "I drive my car with due regard for myself and others," etc., but will that statement to your Physician, the Hospital, the Nurse or Druggist after an accident cause bills to be marked PAID IN FULL; or keep the old pay check coming regularly, or keep your business as prosperous during your absence as while you are at the helm?

Accident insurance will pay bills; provide for dependents and otherwise bridge the span of disability with pay checks.
