BIG PROPERTY OWNERS JOIN HANDS TO CARRY OUT MANNING SURVEY

paths 12 feet, with suggestion of surfacing for some of the main roads and sand-clay for the roads most used by horses. Right of way to be given by landowners. A temporary agreement proposed that owners clear right of way when definitely located sufficiently for bridge paths. It was also proposed that reservations be made on the old Southern Pines road from Pinehurst for roadside planting, knitting that road into the new scheme as a primary factor.

When Rassic Wicker has gone farther in his remodeling of the maps the property owners will meet again to discuss further detail. Meanwhile some of them will be clearing out some of the roads that are apparently definitely established. Judge Way has formed an unemployment organization consisting of himself, and will keep two or three hands on the job on his lands until openings have been made pretty much over the place to serve as preliminary paths and roads that may be traversed, and which can be taken up for further development as the plans are ripened.

Mr. Manning has sent down some drawings giving a bird's eye view of prospective locations in cove and on the knobs, showing what may be the possibilities on the Way property and on one or two other locations that have been under his observation. These sketches offer an excellent idea of what is to be the outcome of the work, although the pictures are merely suggestions, and may or may not prove the ultimate plans.

ERNEST BAILEY RETURNS TO SEABOARD POST HERE

Ernest Bailey, who was formerly in the Seaboard office in Southern Pines until he was transferred to South Carolina, is back again at the Seaboard station. Mr. Bailey was liked by the people when he was here before because of his cordial willingness to help make railroad tangles clear, and his transfer to the south was regretted by many of the local folks. He is received with a welcome on his return because of his popularity.
