Graduates Told of High Rank of North Carolina in Welfare Work

"Although such progress has necessarily been slow, North Carolina during the past several decades has assumed a commanding position in social welfare activities," Mrs. W. T. Bost, State commissioner of public welfare, declared in her address at the exercises marking the graduation of the six members of the 1931 class of the Sanatorium Training School for Nurses, held last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Bost's address discussed briefly the progress of social welfare activities in North Carolina during the past 100 years and described the establishment of such institutions as the school for the deaf and dumb in 1845, and the State hospital in 1849, the State prison in 1869 and the State Sanatorium in 1907. The speaker emphasized the State's social service legislation, including the Mother's aid law, the sterilization law, the child labor and compulsory attendance law, and the law abolishing the use of the lash on State prisoners.

The exercises opened with invocation by the Rev. W. C. Ball of the Aberdeen Methodist Church, followed by the singing of a group of songs by Miss Virginia Hufty of Wilson, Dr. J. S. Hooker, physician in charge of men patients, presided. Mrs. Bost was introduced by Dr. P. P. McCain, superintendent of the Sanatorium, who also presented the diplomas to the graduates, Miss Minnie Byburn of Chattanooga, Tenn., Miss Nelle Smith of Pleasant Garden, Miss Lottie McCarter of Clover, S. C., Miss Rosie Hogan of Maxton, Miss Martha Horton of Mooresville, and Miss Alma Howell of Boone. Hospital pins were presented by Dr. S. M. Bittinger, assistant superintendent.

sign of appreciation for the gift on behalf of the Moore County bar. Mrs. Seawell then introduced Mrs. Sidney Cooper, State Regent of the D. A. R., who made a short but inspirational talk, mentioning briefly the general work of the D. A. R. throughout the state and complimenting the Alfred Moore chapter for its fitting commemoration of the chapter's namesake as well as that of the county's.

At the close of Mrs. Cooper's talk, Judge W. J. Adams, Moore county's most distinguished jurist, delivered an address on the life and work of Judge Moore. In stressing the importance of the service which Alfred Moore rendered his state and nation, Judge Adams mentioned the salient qualities of the man, both in character and education. Having been born on May 21, 1755, Alfred Moore was at the height of young manhood during that most critical period of our national history which lay between the Declaration of Independence and the adoption of the Federal Constitution. That period and not the gloomy days Thomas Paine referred to was "the time that tried men's souls." Judge Adams said; and in summing up his varied career he pointed out that Alfred Moore is to be remembered largely for his energy and worth as a patriot rather than as a jurist, as he handed down only one opinion during the whole period in which he served as associate justice of the United States Supreme Court; However, through the bravery and patriotism of Alfred Moore and others like him, the Federal government derived its source.

Miss Rita Roeder Makes Trip from Southern Pines To Bradford, Pa., in Monoplane

Miss Rita Roeder, too ill to be removed by ambulance or train from Southern Pines to her home in Bradford, Pa., made the trip in an improvised aerial ambulance a week ago. Miss Roeder had spent the winter here, but her condition became so acute about two weeks ago it was deemed advisable to send her north.

W. H. Roeder, brother, informed of the situation, engaged Carl Litzberger, a pilot from Erie, Pa., to come for Miss Roeder. He left Erie on the 19th, stopping off at Bradford where he took Roeder and Miss Landin, a trained nurse, aboard his Travelaire monoplane. They came to Southern Pines, converting the plane at the Knollwood airport to make room for a stretcher. Miss Roeder was transported to the field by ambulance and placed comfortably aboard the plane, and a few hours later was safe in her home at Bradford.

who planned the project, through the study of the architect, to the tasks accomplished by each of the contractors in the various fields of work, the results are not only a great creation, but they also tell of skill in workmanship and of interest on the part of every man who had a hand in the game. With the landscaping effects to bring out the virtues of the location of the building a view from any direction shows up the accomplishment just as a study of the building inside tells the same story.

The new Olmstead house farther east on the same road at Knollwood, is finished on the outside, and will be completed before much longer. It is one of the striking among the smaller houses on the hill, and will hold its own in comparison with any of its neighbors. Mr. Olmstead has a knack of fitting a house to its surroundings and to its purpose of making a home. Its situation in the pines gives it a charm that will greatly increase its value as one of the that neighborhood of pleasant dwellings for which Knollwood is famed.

The new wing added to its main building by The Paddock was completed this week, providing additional bedroom facilities. The new garage, with servants' quarters above, under construction on the newly developed E. Webster Knight estate adjoining The Paddock, is nearing completion.

NAMES OF RUTHERFORD COLLEGE ALUMNI SOUGHT

The alumni association of Rutherford College is anxious to get as complete list as possible of names and addresses of all students enrolled from 1853 to 1900 inclusive. We urge the people of the entire state to help in this movement. It will be remembered that this old institution was one of the pioneer schools of the state and turned out many thousand useful men who entered into every walk of life. Many of them held high positions of trust and honor among us. Thousands of them too poor to pay tuition were taken care of without money and without price.

Many of these old students were fathers and mothers of good men and leaders of the state to-day. Therefore, we trust the press and citizenship will send us the name of every old student they can think of, and if dead give something of the history and activities of such and date of death. The history of every student will be worth much to the institution.

The annual alumni address by Dr. J. E. Abernethy of the Western North Carolina Conference, and banquet will be held Monday evening at six o'clock, May 25th.

Mrs. R. A. Johnson of Maine avenue, is visiting relatives in South Boston, Va.
