Second Highway from Aberdeen to Southern Pines is Proposed

one of the principle assets of the community, in that it would traverse the present No. 2 fairway on the No. 1 course some 500 yards, lopping some 70 feet from what is already a narrow fairway. It would affect the No. 1 and the No. 3 holes of this same course. F. F. Travis, secretary of the Country Club said yesterday it might mean the necessity of abandoning this course, the present fairways being so arranged that changes in the layout appear at present to be practically impossible. Should construction on the road be in progress this winter, it would mean a tremendous loss in revenue to the club.

Citizens of both Aberdeen and Southern Pines interviewed by The Pilot this week seemed almost unanimously against the proposed route.

Many Voice Opposition
"Absolutely unnecessary expenditure of public funds."

"Just the kind of thing that has the country where it is today."

"More taxes!" "Chance to get our hand in the grab-bag which some folks can't seem to resist."

"What has become of all the talk about governmental economy?"

"Could be built only at tremendous cost over route proposed."

These were a few of the expressions of prominent citizens heard during the week.

The surveying of the proposed route had people pretty much disturbed. There may be no need for it; there may be. Just how far the proposal to build the highway has gone at Raleigh is not known here. It seems to be the general feeling that Commissioner McNair will wage a strenuous campaign for this link between the Maine to Florida No. 1 route and his home town of Laurinburg, but a strong fight against the needless extravagance will be waged locally and carried to Raleigh. The opponents feel that any highway funds available should be spent on existing roads, that there is dire need of improving No. 1 in this locality, for which the Southern Pines Chamber of Commerce and other organizations of Aberdeen and Southern Pines have been fighting for several years.

GOLF MAGAZINE TO FEATURE COURSES IN SANDHILLS

Golf Illustrated, leading New York golf publication, has arranged with John Vavasour Noel, well known resort specialist and publisher, to prepare a series of travel articles on "Motoring Among Southern Links." The first, covering golf in Virginia, will appear in the November issue.

Mr. Noel is now in Southern Pines renewing old friendships and gathering material for his article on golfing in the Sandhills section. After publication in the magazine this will be reprinted as a booklet. Mr. Noel prepared a booklet for Southern Pines two seasons ago. He has recently combined his publication business with the Golf Illustrated Hotel and Travel Bureau and will direct their booklet service in the future.
