No. 1 U. S. Tennis Player, A Sandhills Favorite, To Star for M-G-M

Frank X. Shields, America's No. 1 tennis player and a favorite in the Sandhills where he has performed annually for some time in the North and South tournament at Pinehurst, signed a seven-year movie contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer on Tuesday of this week and will report to Hollywood on November 15th. The Associated Press report says:

Bill Grady, assistant to the vice president of M-G-M, signed the tennis star late Tuesday afternoon, culminating negotiations begun at Forest Hills during the 1933 national singles championship.

Shields took screen and sound tests several weeks ago and they "turned out great," Grady said.

"In the case of Shields we're buying a personality," Grady said, "and moulding it to suit our convenience."

"In my opinion Shields is the best prospect that has come along in years and we certainly hope to make a star of him."

"His contract does not call for his playing tennis in the pictures, so his amateur standing will not be impaired."

Sandhills Peach and Dewberry Growers Discuss "New Deal"

Meeting at Aberdeen May Lead to Marketing Agreements Approved by AAA

The New Deal, enricher of the tobacco farmer and consoler of the great agrarian populace, renovator of barns that sagged and outbuildings that shook—has inspired the peach and dewberry grower of the Sandhills, says the Sanford Herald.

Already in Lee county an organization has been perfected to cooperate with seven counties of the section, and the complete cooperative is progressing rapidly. Judge T. J. McPherson, who raises dewberries, heads the group in Sanford.

Last week the judge and T. F. Matthews, also County Agent E. O. McMahan, represented Lee county at a meeting, fairly representative of both growing and marketing industries of the eight counties, held at Aberdeen. Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials from Washington and Raleigh were on hand to explain the workings of their department regarding the proposal.

The officials, however, made it plain in the beginning that they could only give information and answer inquiries; that they were not permitted to initiate any movement of any sort affecting the production, sale or distribution of these commodities, or the organization of a group of growers or shippers.

For Marketing Regulation

The organization of the Sandhills growers, while carried no further than skeleton stage, looks to orderly marketing of both peaches and dewberries, and will endeavor to sponsor marketing agreements to be approved by the Department of Agriculture, by which distribution to different markets would be regulated, eliminating congestion of selling centers.

The chief complaint of the dewberry growers at present concerns the rising price of crates, last year's cost being an advance of nearly 100 per cent over that of the previous season; and sharp advance in the price of fertilizer has caused concern to peach men. Manufacturers of both commodities, in answer to growers' objections, passed the buck on to the codes regulating lumber and guano industries, claiming they could not alter the situation or price list. However, the fruit growers learned at the Aberdeen meeting that their case would, by certain precedence, receive the attention of Washington officials.

It is thought by growers of this section that discussions will eventually lead to fruit marketing agreements and practices, also the formation of committees and an organization which will aid the producers to realize much greater returns from their products.

Judge McPherson represents Lee county on the executive committee of the embryonic Sandhills organization.

There is a contest between the students with a dollar as a prize to the person bringing in the most money. The proceeds will go to the Athletic Association, for buying new equipment.

Alexander Grosset, 66, Dies of Heart Attack

Head of Noted Publishing House Was Frequent Visitor in Pinehurst

Pinehurst was shocked to learn on Sunday of the sudden death of Alexander Grosset, head of the publishing house of Grosset & Dunlap, Inc., at his home in Greenwich, Conn., last Saturday. Mr. Grosset, who was 64 years of age, had been a frequent visitor in Pinehurst where his partner, George T. Dunlap, maintains a winter home.

Mr. Grosset's death resulted from a sudden heart attack. He had been at his New York office the day before, apparently in good health. The company which he headed is considered the leading reprint publishing house in the country. It seldom published original manuscripts, but recently made an exception in the case of Bion H. Butler's "Old Bethesda," because of the interest in this community of both Mr. Grosset and Mr. Dunlap.

Besides his widow, the former Frances Sparks of Philadelphia, Mr. Grosset is survived by a son, Donald Grosset of Scarsdale; three daughters, Alexandra, Janet and Barbara Grosset, all of Greenwich; and another brother, James, of Arlington, N. J.

The funeral service was held privately at the Grosset home at 3:15 p. m. on Monday.

Women Relied Upon To Get Out the Vote

Have Proven as Successful as Men in Canvassing Their Precincts

Since women began to take an active interest in politics, forty years ago, there has been a continued and wide-spread discussion of their influence in political campaigns. Opinions may differ, but there is no gainsaying the fact that women have rendered a splendid service to the nation in getting out the vote.

Perhaps because the franchise was a new institution to them, it was beyond the understanding of the women that everybody did not take advantage of their right to vote. In the West, the first result of the enfranchisement of women was an increase in the number of men voters. The women expected them to do their duty, and men are apt to live up to the best that women expect of them.

After the adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment in 1920, the first widespread movement on the part of women was to get out the vote, and they are still at the task. There are approximately 73,000,000 persons of voting age in the United States and less than 40,000,000 went to the polls in 1932. The women are determined to get out this "slacker" vote of nearly 30 per cent. They believe that, when the issue is the defeat of the depression, poverty and hunger, it is not time for neutrals and fence-sitters. They believe that, when casting a vote is apt to be the most a citizen can do, it is certainly the very least any citizen should do.

Even before women were fully enfranchised, the Democratic National Committee in 1918 added them to its own number, urging states where women then had the vote to perfect their party organizations on a 50-50 basis—a committeewoman for every committeeman. It soon became evident that women were as successful as men in canvassing their precincts and prevailing upon indifferent persons to register and to vote. In many sections, the precinct committeewoman has become the main reliance of the party for the routine of registration and getting out the vote on election day.

Pros To Inaugurate New Grass Greens

First Three Holes of Famed No. 2 Course To Be Used in Tourney Nov. 13-15

When America's brigade of professional golf stars arrives in Pinehurst to compete in the $1,900 Scotch four-somes match play tournament, starting November 13th, they will find grass greens on each of the first three holes of the championship No. 2 course.

This is a radical departure, for Pinehurst courses always have been famed for their excellent and level sand greens. Work on the grass greens was started early this summer by Frank Maples, greens keeper, and they will be available for play for the first time when the professional tournament starts.

In past years, grass never has stood up under the heavy play that the Pinehurst courses receive, but it is believed that the type of grass used this time will be able to withstand the heavy usage. If the present grass greens prove successful this winter, similar greens will be constructed on all four courses of the Pinehurst Country Club.

Since grass greens will make the holes easier for holing long iron shots, Donald J. Ross, noted golf architect, has constructed numerous rolls and contours to guard the greens, and the professionals will have no easy time of it in the coming two-ball foursomes tournament.

At present the grass greens are closed, but there are alternate sand greens available for play.

The report for North Carolina is outstanding in that a most pronounced improvement in staple length is shown.

About 20 percent of the ginnings in Georgia this season to date is one inch and longer compared with 10 percent to date last season; South Carolina ginnings show 56 percent of this designation this season against 39 percent last year; North Carolina, 56 percent this year compared with 25 percent for one inch and longer last year.
