

SOUTHERN PINES HOME OF MANY LEADING WRITERS

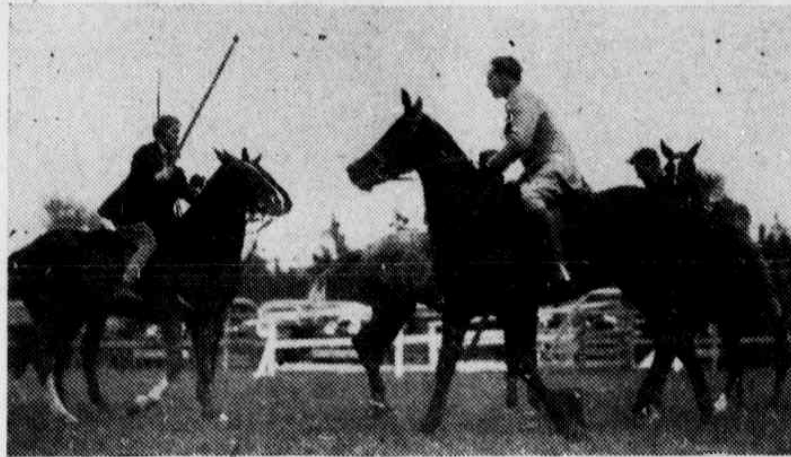

Claude Hayes Submits List of Best Known Works of Residents Here

Southern Pines is the home of many prominent writers, some making their year 'round residence here, others spending the winter months away from their colder northern homes. To make a complete list of all local authors and their works would require too much space. But Claude Hayes, of the Sandhills Book Shop, has submitted the following list, with the principal works of each:

Maude Parker Child, Impersonation of A Lady; Bion H. Butler, Old Bethesda; Struthers Burt, Diary of A Dude Wrangler, Festival, They

Could Not Sleep, Delectable Mountains, Interpreter's House, Entertaining the Islanders, When I Grew Up To Middle Age; Katharine Newlin Burt—The Tall Ladder, Snowblind, Cock's Feathers, The Branding Iron, "Q," Beggars All, A Man's Own Country, Hidden Creek; Katharine Ball Ripley—Sand In My Shoes, Sand Dollars; Clements Ripley, numerous thrillers; Walter Gilkyson, Lights of Fame, Oil, Lost Venture, Tomorrow Never Comes; Lawrence B. Smith—American Game Preserve Shooting; Bernice Lesbia Kenyon—Songs of Unrest, Meridian; John B. Sale, The Tree Named John; Dr. E. M. Poate—Pledged to the Dead, Behind the Lock Door, The Trouble at Pine-lands; Ralph Page, Dramatic Moments in American Diplomacy; Letitia McDonald, Young and Fair, Silver Platter, Lady Alone; Wallace Irwin, Lew Tyler's Wives, The Golden Bed, Letters of a Japanese School-boy, Mated; Hugh McNair Kahier, McIvor's Folly, Father Means Well,

A Battle During Equestrian Gymkhana

Hills Were Higher Then, Babel, The East Wind.

James Boyd's historical novels—Drums, Marching On, Long Hunt; James M. Neville—Mud and Glory, Rich Irish; Milton P. Skinner and Dr. John Warren Achorn, Winter Birds of the Sandhills; Robert W. Winston—Autobiography of Robert E. Lee, Autobiography of Andrew Johnston; Hallworthy Hall (Harold A. Porter), Six Best Cellars; Temply Bailey—The Tin Soldier, Wall Flowers, Mistress Ann, The Blue Window, Peacock Feathers, The Dim Lantern, The Gay Cockade, The Trumpeter Swan, Contrary Mary, Glory of Youth, Silver Slippers, Burning Beauty; Ruth Burr Sanbord, Murder By Jury; Earl Derr Biggers—The Seven Keys To Baldpate, From There On; Eugene Jones—Who Killed Gregory?; Joseph C. Lincoln—Cap'n. Dan's Daughter, Cap'n. Eri, Cape Cod Stories, Cap'n. Warren's Wards, The Depot Master, Extricating Obadiah, Fair Harbor, Mr. Pratt and others.

In addition a number of short story writers reside here, among them Almet Jenks, frequent contributor to the Saturday Evening Post.

Roque Featured on Courts at Men's Club

Attractive Clubhouse and Grounds Available for Use by Winter Residents

Overlooking the City Park is the comfortable clubhouse and roque courts of the Southern Pines Men's Club, an organization providing the only standard championship courts for this pastime in the state, and upon which many national and state champions play during the winter season.

Organized in 1914, with one court the original club was adopted in the formation of the Men's Club in 1925, the erection of the clubhouse and the building of two more courts following the amalgamation, thus providing additional opportunity for residents and visitors in Southern Pines to follow this popular pastime. Comfortable seats in the well kept grounds are provided for the many spectators of the daily contests.

The clubhouse is open every day except Sunday, and for a modest membership fee residents and season visitors are provided comfortable quarters for bridge, chess, pool and billiards.

KIWANIS CLUB MEETS WEEKLY ON WEDNESDAYS

The Kiwanis Club of Aberdeen, embracing in its membership residents of Aberdeen, Pinehurst, Southern Pines, Carthage and other villages of Moore county, meets regularly once a week, on Wednesday noons, when affairs of the community are discussed over the luncheon table by leaders in various lines of business and professionals.

Orchids Raised Here

One of Largest Plants in South Maintained by Judge William A. Way

One of the interesting sights of the Sandhills to visitors as well as residents are the orchid greenhouses of Judge William A. Way in Knollwood. This is one of the largest plants for the raising of orchids in the south. The greenhouses are open to visitors on payment of a small fee which goes to the Kiwanis Club's Charity Fund.
