

Fingerprints Solve Wiley House Theft

George Hill Admits Entering Southern Pines Home During Past Summer

By means of the fingerprint service maintained by the sheriff's office in Moore county, the Wiley house robbery in Southern Pines which occurred last summer and which involved some seven or eight hundred dollars' worth of jewelry has been solved. Fingerprint Expert Lawrence Kelly obtained prints from a wall in the home and the pictures were filed in the sheriff's office.

Recently, when George Hill was arrested for breaking and entering a number of Sandhills homes which had been closed for the summer, his fingerprints were taken, and a check-up revealed that they were identical with those found in the Wiley home. In court last week, Hill pleaded guilty to all charges against him except that of breaking and entering the Wiley house, but, according to Mr. Kelly, who has since then confronted him with the fingerprints, Hill has admitted going into this house. The jewelry has not been recovered.

Cold Comfort

Roy Ritter Leaps Into Creek When Officers Raid Liquor Plant

There are things that are worse than a sudden plunge into the chilly waters of Buffalo Creek on a December day, so thinks Roy Ritter, and one of these less desirable things is falling into the hands of "the law."

Roy Ritter and his nephew, Rufus Ritter, were at their place of business on the bank of the creek some three and a half miles northeast of Hemp on Monday at noon when Officers Slack, Lambert and Bray arrived upon the scene. Without waiting for an exchange of greetings, Roy jumped into the creek and departed for an unannounced destination. Rufus returned to Carthage with the officers and was bound to United States District Court in Rockingham. The distillery was an 85-gallon copper outfit and about twelve gallons of liquor was there.

LIBRARY KEEPS ABREAST OF NATIONAL READING TASTES

Of the 49 books recently listed by the New York Herald Tribune Book Section as best sellers throughout the nation the Southern Pines Library has nineteen, twelve fiction and seven non-fiction. The first five of the twenty-four most popular fiction titles are all to be had in the library. They are: So Red the Rose, Stark Young; Goodbye, Mr. Chips, James Hilton; Mary Peters, Mary Ellen Chase; The Folks, Ruth Suckow; Lost Horizon, James Hilton.

Of the first five of the twenty-five most popular titles in non-fiction two are to be found in the library: Forty-two Years in the White House, I. (Ike) Hoover; Challenge to Liberty, Herbert Hoover.

The librarian reports that the two favorites with local readers during the month of October were So Red the Rose and Forty-two Years in the White House.

GLEE CLUB SINGS BEFORE DISTRICT EDUCO CLUB

Santa Picks His Helpers!

O-O-OH! Santyettes. Romping down from the North Pole, they've come to help old Santa with modern Christmas presents that are a real problem to handle with his sleigh and reindeer. They'd like one of these Christmas Frigidaires back in their igloo in Hollywood, where they spend their time in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures when not helping Santa. In real life, they're Muriel Evans and Ruth Channing. A year round and lifetime present is a Christmas Frigidaire, Santa's charming helpers state.

We demand a SQUARE DEAL for Roads!

Road taxes are being used for general purposes. This isn't playing square. The "highway holiday" has already caused more than $3,000,000.00 damage to roads. Car owners must pay this bill.

Poor roads also increase car operating costs. Tell your legislator to send car operating costs down by using road taxes for roads only.
