3 VIOLENT DEATHS MAR WEEK- END IN THE SANDHILLS

Boy Slain in Game of "Shootin'" and Park Brewer Fatally Wounded in Putnam

FRY KILLED BY AUTO

Saturday was a day of tragedy in Moore county with three violent deaths taking place within a few hours, an unprecedented number for this county. Firearms accounted for two and the third was a highway tragedy.

Willard Womble Clegg, a nine-year-old Negro boy of the Putnam section, died with his "cornstalk gun" in his hand after he had been shot by his eleven-year-old cousin, Rich Clegg, who had discarded a stick gun for the real article in the course of a game of "shootin'." The shell with which the smaller lad was killed was one which he had given the older child, according to Rich's statement.

Willard and Rich resided at the home of the latter's grandmother and were alone at the time the shooting occurred. Rich ran the mile and a half to Putnam, following the shooting, and told that Willard was lying on the porch dead. He said that two strange Negroes who came in on a train had passed by the house and he thought that they had killed the boy. Others had seen the two men, and it seemed that the lad had established a strong alibi, but officers, examining a gun located in the house, found that it had recently been fired and by careful questioning they led the boy into an admission of his part in the tragedy. He produced the empty shell from where he had hidden it in a closet. The child is now in the county jail. He is of average size for his age and is in the second grade at school.

John Hackney, a comparatively young white man of the Putnam section, freely admits the fatal shooting of Park Brewer, another white man of the same section, on Saturday evening. Hackney and his wife and two children have been residing in the home of the grandmother of Brewer. On Friday, according to Hackney's version of the affair, Brewer and his mother visited the place and Brewer objected to Hackney's staying there, threatening to return the next day and kill the last one of them if they did not move.

The following day he was seen approaching. Hackney went into the house and got a gun. Standing in the doorway he called to the other man to "wait a minute," and as Brewer appeared to the frightened man to be holding a gun behind him, Hackney fired. However, it is reported that Brewer was unarmed. Hackney is in the county jail awaiting trial.

Henry Fry of Carthage, a painter by trade, died in the Moore County Hospital Sunday morning after having been struck by an automobile while walking along the Pinehurst road Saturday night. He is said to have been struck by a car going toward Pinehurst at a rapid speed, and to have been knocked in front of the car of V. D. Boles, who was coming into Carthage. Boles carried the injured man to the hospital. Fry is survived by seven children. His wife and twin babies died several months ago.

Pine Maskers Win Way to State Finals

Southern Pines High School Dramatic Club Scores Again at Chapel Hill

The Pine Maskers of the Southern Pines High School won the preliminary dramatic contest at Chapel Hill last Friday night, March 15, over the competition of the two Raleigh high schools and the Chapel Hill High School. This entitles the local Thespians to compete in the finals at Chapel Hill during the coming Dramatic Festival to be held in the Carolina Playmaker's Theatre in Chapel Hill on March 28th and 29th.

This is the third consecutive year that the Southern Pines High School has represented the East in the high school finals for city high schools and last year it won over the Lenoir High School and the Hugh Morson High School of Raleigh. The Chapel Hill High School presented "Not Quite Such a Goose"; Hugh Morson gave James Barries' "The Twelve Pound Look;" Needham Broughton gave "Eve In Evelyn;" and the local high school presented Louise Saunders' "Figureheads." The cast for the Pine Maskers is Eleanor Harloe, Ruth Richardson, William Winter, Lawrence Williams, Herman Grover, Sylvia Pethick and Harold Fowler. The director is Miss Sarah Falckner.

Theatre

At Pinehurst

The mad early days of repeal in New York come to the screen for the first time in "Gigolette," the attraction at the Pinehurst Theatre Monday, March 25th, matinee and night. From the sinister "cabarets" of prohibition's last days, the exciting story moves to a rich cafe of the new era. Against these colorful backgrounds is played one of the most vivid dramas of the year with romance and melodrama expertly mingled. Four of filmland's most popular players are seen in the leading roles of "Gigolette." Beautiful Adrienne Ames, at her best in the role of a socialite heiress who goes to work as a hostess in the dingy "night club" run by Terry Gallagher, said to be one of the best roles that the popular Ralph Bellamy has had in seasons. Donald Cook and Robert Armstrong, are the other two, in equally suitable roles.

"West Point of the Air," the attraction at Pinehurst Wednesday, March 27th, matinee and night, tells two stories. One minutely details the growth and development of the U. S. Army flying corps from its establishment to today. The other, pursuing a father-son affection admiration vein, is embellished with a romantic love interest contrast. Made in cooperation with the Army Air Corps at Randolph Field, the picture might be termed the big parade of the nation's army air forces. The photoplay, especially the aviation scenes and shots of plane maneuvers, is exceptional. One of its big features will be a thousand planes flying in military formation; others are aerial combat sequences, a scene in which 200 parachute jumps are made simultaneously. Wallace Beery, Robert Young, Maureen O'Sullivan and Lewis Stone head the cast.

America's master showman, George White, who has sponsored fifteen musical hits on Broadway, has created a richer, more gorgeous edition of his popular screen "Scandals," "George White's Scandals of 1935," setting new standards in scintillating entertainment, is the attraction at Pinehurst Friday, March 29th, matinee and night. Fox film's 1935 version is said to be so spectacular that it makes Broadway self-conscious. It boasts haunting and peppy melodies, a rich stage extravaganza, a wealth of stars and beauties. The coming Scandals has for magnets a handful of stage and screen stars whose names have blazed from the marquee of Manhattan's proud playhouses. Contributing to the gayety are Alice Faye, James Dunn, Ned Sparks, Lynn Roberts, Cliff Edwards, Arline Judge, Eleanor Powell, Emma Dunn, Benny Rubin and George White, who conceived, produced and directed the entire production.

At Southern Pines

Tall, lanky Gary Cooper and blonde, exotic Anna Sten are paired for the first time as a new romantic team in "The Wedding Night," the attraction at the Southern Pines Theatre Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, March 25, 26, 27, with a Tuesday matinee. It is a Samuel Goldwyn production and features Ralph Bellamy, Helen Vinson and Siegfried Rumann. "The Wedding Night" is a dramatic romance in which Miss Sten portrays a modern American girl rebelling against the dictates and restraints of tradition, and Gary Cooper appears as a successful, sophisticated New York author with whom she falls in love. Miss Sten's part is in sharp contrast to her previous performances in "Nana" and "We Live Again," showing her as thoroughly American in dress, talk and actions. The film marks another milestone in the career of Cooper.

Starring Irene Dunne, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, RKO-Radio brings to the screen a colorful picturization of "Roberta," the musical play which has been making theatrical history on the stage and which plays a return engagement at Southern Pines Thursday, Friday, Saturday March 28, 29, 30, with a Saturday matinee. Lavishly produced, the picture retains all of the popular features of the stage play, but also presents a number of specially brilliant entertainment highlights, including a spectacular fashion show. Miss Dunne's singing, the dancing as Astaire and Miss Rogers, and sparkling novelty episodes enliven the production, which eclipses even the success of "The Gay Divorcee." "Roberta" was adopted from the stage play "Gowns by Roberta," music by Jerome Kern, books and lyrics by Otta Harbach, which ran more than 250 performances. Dances are introduced by Fred Astaire and Miss Rogers that outshine those they did in "Flying Down To Rio."

Elon College Singers in Concert Here on Sunday

The Elon Singers of Elon College will give a concert at the Church of Wide Fellowship Sunday at 8:00 p. m., March 24, with a varied and interesting program. The choir itself is composed of forty mixed voices and does most of its singing unaccompanied. Under direction of Professor Dwight Steere, it is making its third annual tour of this part of the country.

The first half of the program as designed for presentation here is sacred and the last half largely secular. The chorus numbers are divided into four groups, and between the groups other music will be furnished by several of the violinists, pianists, and vocal soloists who travel with the Singers. It is expected that the concert will be enjoyable and interesting to all who attend. Admission will be free but an offering taken toward traveling expenses.
