Drama, romance, thrills, and the gorgeous music of Victor Herbert's greatest operetta are blended in "Naughty Marietta," the attraction at the Pinehurst Theatre, Monday, April 1st, matinee and night. "Naughty Marietta" is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular romance of Creole days in New Orleans, which brings to the screen Jeanette MacDonald, glamorous heroine of "The Merry Widow," and Nelson Eddy, eminent American operatic baritone, and tells a graphic story of the settlement of New Orleans by the French in the days of Louis XV and of the love of a disguised French princess, seeking escape from a marriage of state, and an English Officer. The new photoplay is based on the Victor Herbert masterpiece in which Emma Trentini and Orville Harrold first starred on the stage.

"Mississippi," the attraction at Pinehurst Wednesday April 3rd, matinee and night, unite in name and talent array Bing Crosby's crooning, W. C. Fields' comedy and Joan Bennett's beauty, to make this production of showboat and plantation life colorful and interesting. The story taken from Booth Tarkington's story and play, "Magnolia," has its major locale on an old South plantation and on a Mississippi River showboat. Against that background, it tells the romantic tale of a lounging job-seeking Northern crooner built up by the showboat's Barnum-minded impresario to the stratus of a ruthless man killer, and his adventures in love. Crosby, in his best manner, sings "Down by the River," "Soon" and "It's Easy to Remember, Hard to Forget," by Rodgers and Hart, and his own applause-winning version of "Suwannee River." W. C. Fields as the showboat owner, provides characteristic comedy, while love interest for Crosby is shared with Gail Patrick and Joan Bennett. Queenie Smith, widely featured radio personality, makes her initial featured screen appearance. An added attraction is Mickey Mouse in his first Technicolor cartoon, "The Band Concert."

There is a robust and colorful comedy about real folk that should appeal to everyone from six to sixty in Paramount's "McFadden's Flats," the attraction at Pinehurst Friday, April 5th, matinee and night, which introduces to the film public, Walter Kelly of beloved vaudeville memory. Kelly acts a rough-speaking but soft-hearted Irishman who rises from brick-laying to wealth. Opposite him is Andy Clyde, acting an economical Scotchman and his ancient friendly enemy. The picture deals with the life-long feud between these two lovable hardshells, and of the romance between their children which finally brings them together. Kelly, in his first film role, is the classic McFadden.

At Southern Pines

"West Point of the Air," playing a return engagement at the Southern Pines Theatre Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, April 1, 2, 3, with a Tuesday matinee, tells two stories. One minutely details the growth and development of the U. S. Army flying corps from its establishment to today. The other, pursuing a father-son affection admiration vein, is embellished with a romantic love interest contrast. Made in cooperation with the Army Air Corps at Randolph Field, the picture might be termed the big parade of the nation's Army Air Forces. The photoplay, especially the aviation scenes and shots of plane maneuvers, is exceptional. One of its big features is a thousand planes flying in military formation; others are aerial combat sequences, a scene in which 200 parachute jumps are made simultaneously.

Again Will Rogers delivers rib-rocking, heart-socking entertainment, loaded with laughter touched off by the comedian's inimitable brand of Americanese, officially clinching his right to the unofficial title of "The Mark Twain of the Screen." in contrast with the two most recent Will Rogers pictures, which, because of their character, came within the "dated" classification. "Life Begins at Forty," playing a return engagement at Southern Pines Thursday, Friday, Saturday, April 4, 5, 6, with a Saturday matinee, is a story of today. It bases its entertainment largely on the theory that today's elder generation is getting more fun out of life than the youngsters. In it Rogers is cast as a country newspaper editor, commenting in a way that parallels his daily briefs, read by millions, on the fads and follies of life. An added attraction is Mickey Mouse's first all Technicolor cartoon, "The Band Concert." In order that all may be accommodated at the matinee, the management will again have a special children's matinee Saturday at 1:00 p. m. at which time the children's admission price will be 10c.
