Thor Johnson Will Conduct in Concert at Church of Wide Fellowship

The University of Michigan Little Symphony, with Thor Johnson conducting, will be the attraction this Sunday night, April 7th, in the series of weekly programs sponsored this winter by the Church of Wide Fellowship in Southern Pines. The Little Symphony, composed of sixteen members of the faculty and students of the University of Michigan School of Music, will offer a number of interesting compositions especially arranged for chamber orchestra. Beside the orchestral portion of the program, five young artists will be presented as soloists with the group.
 Ruby Peinert, violoncellist, and Romine Halimton, violinist, will appear in solo offerings with orchestral accompaniments. An instrumental trio, composed of John Krell, flutist, Charles Gilbert, oboist, and Raymond Kondratowicz, pianist, will unite their talents in the reproduction of an unfamiliar work to many music lovers that is taken from a sacred oratorio, entitled, "The Birth of Christ," composed by Hector Berlioz, famous French composer. Thor Johnson, conductor of this unusual musical group, has experienced an usually busy and successful concert season this winter in the direction of a series of twenty-two weekly concerts on the Michigan University campus which have been enthusiastically received.
 The concert here is one of eighteen appearances being made by the Little Symphony in this state. This is the first southern tour of this organization.

SHRINERS TO GIVE BENEFIT BALL TONIGHT

The Sandhills Shrine Club gives tonight what it hopes will be one of the largest dances of its history, at the Southern Pines Country Club. The proceeds, which go to the Crippled Children's fund, are expected to exceed last year's. More than $5,000 has been provided in the last seven years for the treatment and care of 376 patients.

THISTLE CLUB BRIDGE

The Thistle Club held its annual "White Elephant Party" at the Country Club last Saturday. There were nine tables in play and a prize for everyone. Those having highest scores were Mrs. Spring, Mrs. E. J. Woodward, Mrs. J. S. Milliken, Mrs. R. L. Hart and Mrs. Neill McKeithen.

SACRED CONCERT SUNDAY

ness and professional men and women.

Parade of States

Those taking part in the Parade of States on Wednesday morning—and all are urged to join in the procession—are asked to assemble at 9:30 o'clock on Ashe street, in the block nearest the avenue corresponding to the name of their own state, with all cars facing north. Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus has been asked to make an address following the parade, and has promised to come if his duties t Raleigh will permit.

Many entries have been received for the gymkhana and horse show to be held Wednesday afternoon at the new show ring. There is no doubt of a tremendous crowd for the fireworks that evening. The committee on fireworks promises a display of unsurpassed beauty, and those who witnessed the pyrotechnics here last Fourth of July will know what to expect. Dr. Herr's committee, augmented by Robert Gregson, is in charge. This night's program and the Costume Parade on Tuesday night will attract the youngsters.

Prizes for the Costume Parade are numerous and beautiful. Among the awards will be first and second prizes for groups, for the best couple in costume, for the best ladies' costumes, the best man's and the best children's.

Old Slave Day, most interesting and unique of last year's Festival, will be a feature again this year. The former slaves are coming to town from all parts of the county and will sit about the park and swap tales with those interested in talking to them. A fine program has been arranged for their entertainment, one in which they will also take part, and they will be given a luncheon in the park.

Charles W. Picquet has his Festival Chorus in fine voice for the rendition of "Holy City" Thursday night in the High School Auditorium, Military Day Friday will be featured by Legon, Auxillary and D. A. R. conventions and luncheons, General McCloskey's address followed by the big military parade in the afternoon, and by the Coronation of the Queen and the Queen's Ball that night.

Collegiate tennis matches and the baseball game between Duke University and Davidson College will feature Saturday's program. Duke and North Carolina State College will play an official intercollegiate match on the Municipal tennis courts at 10 o'clock in the morning, and the ball game is scheduled for 2:30. That night there will be a collegiate ball at the Country Club.
