Cameron and Community

The Dramatic Glee Clubs of Carthage and Cameron schools presented a splendid program in the Cameron School Auditorium last Friday evening. Carthage's one-act play was "The Florist Shop," directed by Miss Meade Seawell. This was a well produced play, each of the five characters showing marked ability. "The Kelly Kid," by the Cameron Club, directed by Miss Mary Frances Turner, was received with praise and hearty applause.

The glee clubs gave some excellent numbers, reflecting great credit upon the directors, Mrs. M. G. Dalrymple and Miss Mary Ellen Yelverton, and on the pupils. The Carthage boys were particularly fine. After the program the clubs met in the science room where a social hour was enjoyed, the Cameron girls serving sandwiches and hot chocolate.

Sunday afternoon and evening Prof. and Mrs. R. F. Lowry and Misses Minnie and Jackie Muse were guests of John C. Muse of Sanford at his River Camp some eight miles from town. A delightful picnic supper and boat riding were enjoyed.

Mrs. H. D. Tally and J. D. McLean, jointly entertained the Merry Makers at the home of Mrs. Tally on Carthage street. The home was bright with a profusion of spring flowers.

The Y. P. C. of the Presbyterian Church held its March Council meeting with Miss June McIver Hemphill on Wednesday evening of last week.

The following ladies from Cameron attended the Fayetteville Presbyterial, which convened in Lumberton Tuesday and Wednesday: Mesdames J. E. Snow, J. D. McLean, M. D. McNeill, Loula Muse, James McDonald, W. G. Parker, J. M. Guthrie and Miss Amanda McPherson and Johnnie Cameron. Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Guthrie are Presbyterial officers.

Miss Catharine Monroe of Sanford was the week-end guest of Mrs. H. P. McPherson and J. M. Guthrie.

John Thomas of Route 1 has bought the McPherson store and cafe and he and his wife took charge this week.

The Rev. and Mrs. M. D. McNeill, after spending several days in Goldsboro, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gabe Holmes, returned home Monday.

Mesdames W. M. Wooten and George McFadyen who have been conferred to their homes for several weeks on account of illness, are both greatly improved and their friends are pleased to greet them on the streets again.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gaddy died last Friday and was buried in Johnson's Grove cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Flora Phillips of Flora Macdonald College and Howard Rosser of State College spent the week-end here.

Mrs. Ethel Buchan Stewart of near Manly was the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. M. D. McNeill on Wednesday of last week.

The many friends of the Rev. Frank Hare of Jonesboro, who also serves Cameron Baptist Church, will regret to learn that he was taken quite ill on March 31, and is confined to his bed.

FUTURE OF GOLD MINING HERE SUBJECT OF U. S. BULLETIN

A report of gold mine operations in piedmont North Carolina, history and future prospects, has been issued by the U. S. Geological Survey, in cooperation with State Geologist H. J. Bryson, of the State Department of Conservation and Development. It shows that 500 mines, old and new, are located in the piedmont areas of North and South Carolina. In a period of activity a hundred years ago the cream of the gold, that close to the surface and easily available, was taken off, but it holds out hope for extensive gold production for the future.

librarian at St. Mary's School in Raleigh and former librarian of the Salisbury High School has written an interesting article, "Correlating the School Libraries," in the current issue of the Wilson Bulletin for Librarians, published in New York and distributed over the world. Miss Shields is a Carthage girl, the daughter of Dr. Henry B. Shields.

PINEHURST-CARTHAGE SCHOOLS IN FESTIVAL OF MUSIC

A festival of music and dramatics was held in the Carthage High School auditorium on Friday evening of last week with the Pinehurst and Carthage school participating. The program, which was one of unusual merit, was enjoyed by a large number of patrons of the schools.

The Pinehurst High School presented "Elmer," a play in one act, and this was followed by selections by the school's glee club.

"The Florist Shop" was the title of the Carthage High School's production, and there was music by the Carthage glee club.
