Rural Electrification Asked for Deep River

Dr. Street Presents Project to County Planning Board

crops of corn, cotton, wheat, oats, hay, and all staple crops. And berries, grapes and all fruits grown in Deep River township are of the highest quality. No section of North Carolina in the lower Piedmont has a more productive soil than this township. Much of the area is covered by forest growth; and these forests produce a valuable timber crop that may be, and are cut over every few years, with much profit to the landowners.

Most Valuable Crop

"But with all these great advantages of natural resources, the most valuable crop of all, the boys and girls of Deep River township, are regularly lost to Moore county on account of these boys and girls seeking and finding homes in other communities that are provided with all the modern conveniences, to the great loss of Moore county. No other section of Moore county of equal area has lost to other communities half the number of young people who have gone out and attained positions of leadership in banking, manufacturing, the professions of law, medicine, education, journalism, etc.

"Now, to the end that the migration of the young people from Deep River township may be stopped, and that outsiders of ability and industry may be induced to come to Deep River township, we know of no one development that is so much needed as Rural Electrification.

"The trunk line of the Norfolk Southern Railroad crosses Deep River township, and the township has adequate railroad facilities where varied manufacturing establishments might be advantageously located if the township only had rural electrification.

Bit of Past History

"Not only is Moore county suffering greatly today on account of the short-sighted, pig-headed niggardly policy of the Moore County Board of Commissioners, and has thus suffered from this for half a century, but from this one single thing will continue to suffer for generations to come. Altho it is not generally known, it is a matter of history that half a century ago Moore county lost the location and establishment of the largest cotton mill in North Carolina, larger than any other in the state at that time, because the Moore County Board of Commissioners refused to pay the niggardly sum of fifty dollars as a road damage assessment that had been allowed by a committee that had been appointed by the board to assess damages to a man, a little dried-up negro, across whose land the road was to go. When the committee made its report to the commissioners the commissioners said: 'We will not pay the fifty dollars; if the company wants the road there let the company pay for it.'

"When this report reached the ears of the man who was putting up the money for the enterprise, it had a peculiar and powerful reaction on him, and altho many thousand dollars had been spent in putting in a new dam, building a bridge, and putting up a large grist mill, this man said to the other stockholders in the meeting: 'Gentlemen, the rest of you can do as you please, but I have invested the last dollar that I ever expect to in Moore county. And I will lose every dollar that I have invested in Moore county before I will put another dollar in such a county.' And Moore county had lost the biggest cotton mill in the state, and the greatest investment that had ever been started in the county, because of the foolhardy policy of her Board of Commissioners. Any one interested in knowing who were the men who did this can learn by going to the records and finding out who were the commissioners in the year 1883. It has been observed many times that history has a way of repeating itself. Will future generations have so much cause to censure the present Board of Commissioners as this generation has for censuring that board of 1883?

"The mineral wealth of Deep River township is much greater than that of the balance of the county combined. A supply of electric current would be the greatest inducement for bringing in investors for mining and manufacturing the coal, talc, shales, fireclays and other minerals found in the township, with possibilities of adding millions of dollars to the wealth of Moore county. And we respectfully request that your board thoroughly investigate the natural resources of Deep River township, as we are confident that when this is done that it will easily be seen that potentially Deep River township has natural resources that being developed would make it by far the richest township in Moore county, to the great advantage of all the county.

"Many boys and girls from Deep

Theatre

Packed with action, liberally sprinkled with comedy, "Smart Girl," the attraction at the Southern Pines Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 9, 10, 11, with a Tuesday matinee, turns out to be a bright sophisticated romance drama of the modern girl and her adventures in the business of love as well as in the business of making a living, proving at the same time that business and romance have a strange way of mixing. Ida Lupino, a blonde, well born, personable young thing and her sister, Gail Patrick, brunette, also well born and glamorous, find themselves faced with the problem of earning a living after their father's loss of a huge fortune. Kent Taylor, struggling but handsome young lawyer, pops into their lives at this moment. Both girls, exact opposites though they be, promptly fall in love with him. The eternal triangle is born when he marries the beautiful Miss Patrick who soon shows her true colors. In order to cater to her expensive tastes, her husband finds himself innocently selling phony stock. In the meantime Miss Lupino has taken her bruised heart into the business world and has become successful designing hats for Joseph Cawthorn, a kindly millinery manufacturer. She discovers the stock swindle which involves her brother-in-law and decides its high time she really lived up to the title of the film. Many amusing and dramatic moments arise when this modern young miss starts working things out for herself. The supporting cast includes Joseph Cawthorn, who has a field day and scores laugh after laugh, with Pinky Tomlin also provoking many guffaws, and Sidney Blackmer, who provides the "men-

River township have been educated in the colleges and universities; and almost without exception these boys and girls have left and gone to other sections and states, and Moore county has not only lost their services and the wealth they were enabled to render and to make, but the many, many thousands of dollars invested in their education has likewise been lost to the county. And while this money spent on their education is a big loss to the county, it is but a trifle compared to the loss of the boys and girls themselves, with their developed capacity for doing things for the upbuilding of Moore county."

Pre-views of Shirley Temple's new picture, "Curly Top," the attraction Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 15, 16, 17, with a Saturday matinee, "this is positively Shirley's best," and will bring new thrills in dancing, songs, laughter and sheer fun. Beyond all comparison, "Curly Top" is Shirley's greatest picture. It has five new songs, all with the magical melody touch of Ray Henderson; a number of intriguing Jack Donohue dance routines, including the sensational rope-skipping dance episode; a sterling supporting cast and a corking romantic story about which all of the film's varied activities center, Shirley's two songs, "When I Grow Up" and "Animal Crackers In My Soup," are the high spots of the song program. But John Boles gives his usually excellent rendition of two more numbers, and Miss Hudson surprises with an excellent voice in the first number she has ever sung for the screen.
