

No Books Yet On Eve of Opening of Schools

County Superintendent Not in Favor of New System of Rentals

Next week will see practically all of the Moore county schools opening for the fall term, and an increased enrollment is expected in the various communities.

Requisition for text books was sent in by the county superintendent about two weeks ago, but the books have not yet been received. It is estimated that around sixty percent of the pupils in the county schools will have old books which they can use, thus making it necessary to procure books for only about forty percent of the pupils. These may rent books at a fee of approximately one-third the price of the books, or if they prefer, they may buy books from the county superintendent, or from the local superintendent where there is a city school system.

County Superintendent H. Lee Thomas does not think that the rental system will prove satisfactory. He thinks that there will not be very much saving in families where there are several children to attend school, as books owned by the family could be handed down from one child to another with only the initial cost, whereas the rental fee would have to be paid each year that the books were used. Then, there is the problem of germs to be considered, as it is practically impossible to keep the books in a sanitary condition when passed around from family to family from year to year.

MCKELWAY IS SPEAKER AT KIWANIS LUNCHEON

The Rev. A. J. McKelway of Pinehurst Community Church talked to the Kiwanis Club on Wednesday on the Church's attitude toward existing conditions in the world, the industrial revolution, war and peace and the racial problem. He told of conferences at Montreat this summer on these subjects and revealed the deep interest of the clergy in the troubled affairs of the world, the aims of the church in their solution.

THE ARK SCHOOL TO OPEN FOR SEASON ON OCTOBER 7

The Ark School, of which Mrs. Millicent A. Hayes is principal, will open for the season on October 7th. Mrs. Hayes announced this week. During the summer Mrs. Hayes procured the services for this year of Clyde S. Wilson, formerly of the Hessian Hill School and of the Belmont Country Day School in Massachusetts as a master at The Ark. Mr. Wilson, a well known author as well as instructor, will bring his wife and child here for the school season.

The Ark, which has had a successful career since it opened some nine years ago, is the leading private school in Southern Pines, taking children from kindergarten age through the eighth grade. Mrs. Hayes reports a good registration for the coming term.

DOVE SEASON TO OPEN ON SEPT. 21, TEN DAYS EARLY

Dove hunters will be allowed to take to the fields September 21, or 10 days earlier than was expected, the open season ending 10 days earlier, on January 8, the U. S. Geological Survey's game division has notified the State Department of Conservation and Development. Dove shooting is allowed on the open season days from 7 a. m. until sunset, bag limit 20 a day, the possession limit also being 20. It is unlawful to bait doves. Last year the season was split. Dove shooting is under federal regulations, which cover all wildfowl.
