Theatre

"Music lovers will probably return to see 'Here's To Romance' a second and a third time as Martini's voice offers a thrill seldom found on the screen." That's what a critic has said after seeing a preview of this picture on the Pacific Coast. The Carolina Theatre proudly announces the appearance, on the screen, of that marvelous Metropolitan Opera tenor, Jones, the impish wife in "Escape Me," "Here's To Romance," the attraction for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, October 7, 8, 9, with a Tuesday matinee.

Choosing a story which permitted the introduction of operatic arias and the graceful presentation of such artists as Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Maria Gamberelli and Escudero, the producer gives a masterful showmanship exhibition in offering the Martini in his picture debut, in a songfest of unsurpassed beauty. With Martini, Schumann-Heink makes her screen debut and comes through with
