

Over 8,000 Peach Trees Removed From Abandoned Orchards Here

Ridding Section of Diseased and Dying Trees by Relief Workers Progresses Rapidly

According to a report released from the State Office of Phony Peach Disease Control at Aberdeen, 8,415 dying and diseased trees have been taken up in Moore county during the month of September. Regardless of the several days rainy weather and the fact that the work was not begun until the second week in the month, the work is going forward steadily.

The organization at present consists of 40 relief laborers and two foremen in Moore county and 12 relief laborers and one foreman in Hoke county under the supervision of John G. Sloan of Aberdeen; 40 relief laborers and two foremen in Richmond county and 12 relief laborers and one foreman in Scotland county under the supervision of J. Thomas Page of Rockingham; 30 relief laborers and one foreman in Montgomery county, under the supervision of Harrell Lemmons of Troy; 20 relief laborers and one foreman, in Anson county, under the supervision of B. F. Huntley of Wadesboro. Charles H. Hearn, agent, U. S. D. A., is in charge of the work in North Carolina, under the direction of William F. Turner, project leader, Phony Peach Disease Control, Atlanta, Ga., in collaboration with Dr. R. W. Leiby, State Entomologist, Raleigh.

Splendid cooperation has been given the field men by the orchard owners in carrying on their work. Only two objections have been encountered and these orchards were being leased out by the owners.

Besides supplying much needed work to the great number of relief cases in the various counties, this work will be of momentous value to the orchard owners over the entire peach growing section of the state. The Phony Peach disease and its deadly advance in the state means the loss of thousands of dollars to the orchard men. Absolute cooperation is sought.
