DIETZ RECAPTURED AND RETURNED TO PRISON

imprisoned, Dietz does not believe that he should be in prison now, but since his imprisonment is required, is not kicking much about it.

"The people in charge are going to find that I have an entirely different attitude than I did before. It was pretty tough to be in here before and I didn't have the right attitude about it. I expect it'll be tough again, and there'll probably be nights when I'll just lie down and curse myself for not going out that back door in Ohio. But I'll stop at cursing; I won't go out any more back doors.

"I'm just hoping they won't keep me here too long, but I'll be here as long as they want to keep me and when I get out I will have paid my debt to the law; my debt to my name and myself will be with me for the rest of my life, but when I get out I'll go back to being a good citizen. I was for 27 years before I slipped up and I was for another six after I got out. I think that proves I can do it."

It was on Wednesday afternoon, March 20th, 1929 that Chief Kelly stopped a speeding car at the corner of May street and Massachusetts avenue in Southern Pines. Peering into the rear seat he noticed a number of burglar's tools, and was continuing his investigation when Dietz pulled a gun and fired. Dietz ran to the home of Hunter Eckert, forced Mr. Eckert to drive him to Pinehurst where he stole a car and made his getaway. Chief Kelly, mortally wounded, drove his own car as far as the residence of Dr. W. C. Mudgett, a block from the scene of the shooting, was carried to the front lawn where he lay until the arrival of an ambulance from Fayetteville. He died upon arrival at the Highsmith Hospital there.

Dietz was apprehended in Maine, brought back here and tried at Carthage in May 1929. He was sentenced to serve from 25 to 30 years, and escaped over the wall at the Caledonia State farm after serving but five months of his sentence.
