Southern Pines Looks For a Record Season

December. In March will be held the second annual race meeting of the Sandhills Steeplechase & Racing Association on the new Midland Road course.

Alex Fields, game warden for Moore county, reports an abundance of birds this year. The quail season opened this month and will remain open this month and will remain ruary. The period for hunting deer is now open and several kills have been made near the outskirts of town.

In addition to nine golf tournaments scheduled at Southern Pines Country Club this season a number of tennis events are on the calendar to be played on the sand-clay courts in the town park. One of the tourneys in April will include a match in which college teams will make their appearance. Archery is attracting wide attention among visitors. In Southern Pines the sportsman of moderate circumstances as well as the capitalist has no difficulty in finding a varied entertainment.

Southern Pines offers the very best of hotel accommodations at reasonable rates. There are inns to suit any size purse. They are close enough to the business section of town to be convenient, yet far enough away to avoid the noise of downtown traffic.

In and around Southern Pines are hundreds of miles of sand-clay roads, free from congestion, offering a diversion from monotonous pavement. Southern Pines is but a few hours drive from Raleigh, the State capital of North Carolina; Asheville another well known resort. Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Chapel Hill, the home of the State University. It is within two hours of Duke University, Durham, one of the most richly endowed colleges in the United States. Within one hours' drive is Fort Bragg, the Government's largest artillery reservation. A few miles to the east is Fayetteville, one of the oldest cities in North Carolina, with its slave market. Four miles to the south of Southern Pines is Old Bethesda Church and the tomb of the late Walter Hines Page, ambassador to Great Britain during the World War. Other points of interest are the old gold mines and pottery plants north of Carthage.

The town has a very modern and excellent fire department, and a water plant of the latest design with a graduate chemist in charge. The impounding reservoir covers more than 600 acres of land and is supplied by springs. The State Board of Health has direct control of this filter plant and the inspection of dairies which supply the milk for the community. The village has an excellent high and graded school and also a very fine library governed by some of the outstanding writers of the day.

A HOME - OWNED STORE—ANXIOUS TO SERVE

is developing into an institution of which the community may well be proud.

It serves a double purpose:

1. It brings the women of Moore County farms into town once each week, gives them an opportunity to market their produce at a fair return and in turn to make needed purchases at local stores.
2. It presents to the Southern Pines housewives an opportunity to procure fresh-from-the-farm produce, financially aiding their neighbors from the farm and at the same time getting acquainted with the fine country folk who live 'round about us.
