

Pinebluff Demonstration Club Purchases a Home of its Own

Votes To Celebrate Successful Year's Work by Acquiring Store Building

Outstanding among the home demonstration clubs of the county is the Pinebluff club, which two years ago numbered its membership at around 15 and which during the past year enrolled 50 members. And the club's growth along other lines has been just as phenomenal, due to the executive ability of its president, Mrs. J. H. Suttentfield, and the cooperative spirit existing among the members.

At the January meeting, the club voted to purchase an ideally located store building in Pinebluff for a permanent home demonstration clubhouse, and the acquiring of a "club home" is expected to mark the beginning of a new era of usefulness for the organization. Through the serving of Kiwanis luncheons and other methods of adding to the treasury, the women already have on hand two-thirds of the purchase price of the house and lot. They plan to remodel the building to suit their needs and, later, to hold a shower to procure equipment. The property purchased is the little red store building on Philadelphia avenue owned by Claude Butter of Hoffman.

During the year that has just closed the club, under the leadership of Mrs. E. R. Pickler as recreational chairman, has held three or four recreational meetings with from 150 to 175 persons present at each meeting. This alone is an important feature of the work. The club was winner of the $25 prize offered for the best float in the Spring Blossom Festival parade last year.

The activities and achievements of the Pinebluff club serve as a reminder of the fact that organized rural women are thinking and planning not only for the betterment of their own homes, but for the welfare of the other homes in the community.

Landmark Passes

Old Tarbell Residence on Bennett Street, Southern Pines, is Being Demolished

Contractor J. D. Arey is demolishing the old Tarbell residence on Bennett street, and with the completion of his task another of the few remaining landmarks of the early days of Southern Pines will have vanished. Charles D. Tarbell, an early comer to the budding town, owned the mills of the Tarbell Lumber Co. in Aberdeen, built the big store on the site of the present McBrayer building, long known as "Patch's," and in 1890 erected his home on Bennett street, the house being the seventh of the first dwellings grouped on that important street of early days. Still standing, though a' rebuilt, are the former homes of Captain Clark, Moffett, Parker, Young and Armington, Deacon Tarbell's oldest daughter Anne was the late Mrs. Ashley Jackman, and the property is now owned by another daughter, Mrs. Flora Tarbell Kimball, now a resident of Ashburnham, Mass.

The supporting cast is made up of Virginia Stevick, Ellenore Eddy, Eleanor Harloe, Ruth Thompson, Charles Ross, Peggy Graves, Harry Adams, Jane Musser, Sue Ann Milliken and Ernestine Bailey.

Try-outs are now being held for the contest play, "Highness," which will be given on the same program with the comedy.

Ollie Bean Held For Murder of W. A. Comer

Gives Bond of $2,500 for Appearance in Superior Court in Carthage

Ollie Bean, white, of the Spies section, was on Monday bound to Superior Court under bond of $2,500 on a charge of murdering W. A. Comer, who was fatally shot in Bean's yard on the night of December 31st. The defendant had entered a plea of not guilty, but probable cause was found. He gave bond and was released.

Deputy Sheriff T. N. Slack, Dr. McDuffie of Hemp, and T. R. Freeman, a store-keeper across the Montgomery county line, were called as State's witnesses, but no defense witnesses were called.

Slack told of visiting the scene on January 1st when the earth was covered with hail and snow and of seeing the lifeless body of Comer beneath the well shelter with one quilt spread over it but with nothing underneath. He testified that Bean was there and that he said that he had shot Comer with a .32 pistol. Bean produced a pistol, the officer stated, containing one empty and four loaded chambers.

Freeman told of a conversation with Bean in his store previous to the shooting and of the latter's telling of Comer's going to his home one day while his wife was there but while Bean himself was away. He ran him away, Bean is said to have related, and told him that if he ever came back he would kill him. This took place some two or three weeks prior to the killing, Freeman stated.

In a second case Bean was found guilty of possessing a distillery and of the unlawful sale of liquor. Prayer for judgment was continued until January 27th.

PINEHURST BOY SCOUTS VISIT SOUTHERN PINES

Last Friday night at their monthly "get-together" the Southern Pines Boy Scouts were hosts to the boys from Pinehurst, who came with their scout master, W. E. Hardison, and assistant master, Roger Grover. These boys under supervision of Mr. Grover, gave demonstrations of first aid, treating a broken arm, a broken leg, and fracture and wound dressing, and use of stretcher to carry patients to safety. They also gave all the movements necessary for artificial respiration to save a patient from drowning. A large audience of parents and friends were assembled in the Civic Club for the occasion, and were most enthusiastic about this practical work the boys demonstrated. Under direction of their scout master, Garland Pierce, the Southern Pines Boy Scouts went through the regular drill and setting-up exercises. After this came a tug of war marshalled by Albert Adams, and Mr. Pierce, and after quiet was restored, the boys had exhausted much of their surplus energy and were ready to listen to a splendid travel talk given by Mr. Wentworth, an author and winter resident of Southern Pines. Mr. Wentworth is the author of "On the Road with Lizzie" and other travel books.

A most interesting part of the program was a group of harmonica solos played by Clyde Dunn of Southern Pines Scouts. He showed remarkable talent and hard work in his music and gave much pleasure. Mr. Turner and Mr. Green were hosts on this occasion, and refreshments were served to the one hundred boys present.
