Mrs. Cadwallader of Pinebluff Dies at 89

One of Few Remaining Pioneer Women of Titusville, Pa., Passes at Home Here

Pinebluff was saddened on Sunday by news of the death at her home here of Mrs. Mary A. W. Cadwallader, one of the village's most distinguished and beloved citizens. She was 89 years of age and recently suffered a stroke following which her decline was steady.

The following obituary appeared this week in The Titusville, Pa., Herald:

Mrs. Cadwallader was one of the few remaining pioneer women who came to Titusville in the early days of the oil excitement and was a factor in building a better city socially, religiously and educationally.

Mrs. Cadwallader was born in New York city October 26, 1847, where she had the advantage of a liberal education. She was particularly interested in the higher things of life, music, art and literature, and was known as one of Titusville's most cultured women.

Her husband, the late J. A. Cadwallader, was one of the pioneer oil men. He was also much interested in the building of a more substantial city and promoted the development of the city around the City park in the Second ward. The Cadwallader home was for many years on North Perry street just above the C. F. Emerson property.

Mrs. Cadwallader was one of the early members of the Titusville Woman's club and served two years as president in the early part of the new century. For many years she was very active in the work of the club and much interested in all civic projects for the betterment of Titusville.

Having affiliated with the Episcopal church as a girl, Mrs. Cadwallader was for many years active in the work of St. James' Memorial church. She had travelled extensively both in the United States and abroad.

Mrs. Cadwallader was sister of the late William C. Warner. Mr. Cadwallader died in 1903. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary Cadwallader Benedict and Miss Elinor Cadwallader, both of whom were with their mother when she passed away. A grandson, Cadwallader Benedict, a senior at Princeton University, also survives. A daughter, Edith, wife of Dr. Crowder of Chicago, died about thirty years ago.

For a score or more years, Mrs. Cadwallader had owned a beautiful home at Pinebluff, where she spent the winters, but she had not returned to Titusville the past two summers.

The body was taken to Yardley, near Philadelphia, where interment beside Mr. Cadwallader was made Tuesday afternoon in Wakefield cemetery.

"THIRD DEGREE" TACTICS BY POLICE REPORTED

Southern Pines officials are investigating the report of unwarranted "third degree" methods applied by one or more local police officers in attempting to wring a confession from a negro suspected of recent thefts in town. Much talk was heard on the streets yesterday but no definite statements were obtainable and as far as is known no charges have been preferred against any officer. The matter is expected to come up for discussion at next week's meeting of the Board of Commissioners.

Theatre

The augmented cooling system has been completed in the Carolina Theatre and patrons are thoroughly enjoying it; in fact, one of the patrons remarked to the manager that hereafter, she was going to wear her "flannels."

For the first time since Rossini composed the William Tell Overture almost a century ago, words have been set to the internationally famous composition. Music lovers everywhere will hear it sung as well as played in Walter Wanger's (the maker of "Trail Of The Lonesome Pine") production "Fatal Lady," which stars Mary Ellis, famous Metropolitan Opera soprano, which is the attraction at the Southern Pines Theatre Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, June 15, 16, 17, with a Tuesday matinee. Of all the so-called classical numbers ever written, the William Tell Overture has probably been heard the most universally and by all classes of people. In a scene laid in a Brazilian opera house, Mary Ellis and a troupe of "Brazilian Opera Singers" introduce the new treatment of the old air in a novel sequence of the screen drama. Miss Ellis is seen in "Fatal Lady" as an opera star, risen to the heights of a Metropolitan Opera career, only to be cast into the depths of singing in a Paris Apache dive when men unfortunate enough to have fallen in love with her have been murdered. The story is filled with thrills, as suspicion is cast from one character to another with such startling rapidity as to keep the audience constantly mystified. As an added attraction, Mickey Mouse will appear in "Grand Opera."

The combination of drama, laughter and romance that Damon Runyon introduces in his imitable fiction comes to the screen at Southern Pines Thursday and Friday, June 18 and 19, with a Thursday matinee in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's adaptation of his prize-winning story, "The Wise Guys." Here is a story practically made to order for the screen. Robert Young and Betty Furness have the romantic leads. The story relates the adventures of a rich man's son who strolled from his father's private car on a de luxe train to encounter a beautiful girl in a forward coach. From that moment the story is a stream-lined account of colorful action and romance, with a wealth of humor.

"Here is a picture that any exhibitor, certainly those playing to family trade audiences, can be glad to present to his audience, as the entertainment it presents and the way it presents it is all wool and a couple of yards wide." So says the Motion Picture Daily of "Every Saturday Night," the attraction for Saturday, June 20th, one day only) with a matinee at 3:00. It is a domestic comedy-drama of a typical American family and blends drama with comedy, humor with pathos, heartache with heart-thrill, as modern youth conflicts with loving but resolute maturity, the whole thing being just a few hours chopped out of the Ever's family life.

"Every Saturday Night" proved to be such a hit at its preview that the studio immediately decided to make it the first of a series under the title of "Our American Family," with the same cast which consists of Jed Prouty, father; Spring Byington, mother; June Lang, daughter; Florence Roberts, grandmother; Kenneth Howell, 17, with his first tuedo; George Ernest, 12, a cold-eyed banker, and little June Carlson, with a yen to be Garbo.
